

Bombing halt denied by Johnson

President phones three candidates

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson apparently ruled out Wednesday a halt to the bombing of North Vietnam at this time on grounds of insufficient evidence that such action now would be a step toward peace.

While administration sources were reluctant to talk about the latest development, they cautioned that the President was still keeping possible peace moves under review and that a bombing stop was still possible at some later date.

Reports of a U.S. proposal to end the air attacks first came early in the day from Saigon amid an extraordinary series of meetings involving top U.S. and South Vietnamese officials.

By late morning, Washington time, Johnson was personally on the telephone in a special conference call to the three major presidential candidates—Republican Richard M. Nixon in Kansas City, Democrat Hubert H. Humphrey in St. Louis and Independent George C. Wallace in Los Angeles.

Press secretary George Christian said Johnson wanted the presidential aspirants to know what the White House was saying "in light of the uncertainty created by the various reports," and that he read them this statement issued to newsmen at 10 a.m. EDT:

"The position of the United States with respect to Vietnam remains as set forth by the President and the secretary of state.

"There has been no basic change in the situation: no breakthrough."

About this time U.S. and North Vietnamese negotiators held another weekly meeting at Paris—their 26th since the talks started in May—and neither side reported breaking out of their lengthening deadlock.

Ambassador W. Averell Harriman told newsmen there had been no talk of the bombing issue. North Vietnam's Xuan Thuy repeated Hanoi's longstanding demand for an unconditional halt to the air raids as a prerequisite for progress in the talks.

A Harriman spokesman said later "there has been movement" at the Paris parley but "I cannot characterize it as progress."

The U.S. position, as Johnson put it in his March 31 announcement of a self-limitation on the U.S. bombing, is that the attacks will be stopped altogether if this leads promptly to serious negotiations and "Hanoi would not take advantage of our restraint."

Secretary of State Dean Rusk repeated the formula in saying Oct. 6 that "we are prepared to stop the bombing" but Washington is entitled to know—"through some source, through some channel"—what would happen "so that we could have some confidence that stopping the bombing would be a step toward peace."

Both Johnson and Rusk have been saying that no word has been received from Hanoi that North Vietnam would scale down her drive against the South in response to a bombing stop.

Economics dominates Paris talks

PARIS (AP) — U.S. and North Vietnamese envoys looked beyond the present blocked stage of the peace talks Wednesday and spoke of Vietnam's future, despite the fact there was no hard evidence of yielding by either side.

After the 26th session of the talks the U. S. spokesman, William Jorden, was asked at a news conference if there had been any progress since the talks began May 13.

"It is terribly difficult to judge progress until one arrives at a destination," he replied. "I would say there has been movement... I cannot characterize it as progress."

U.S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman urged the North Vietnamese to think of the postwar economic development of Southeast Asia. He recalled President Johnson's pledge for U.S. aid in such a project, to include North Vietnam.

Xuan Thuy, the North Vietnamese envoy, prepared the ground for any eventual participation in peace negotiations by the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front. Thuy asserted the front controlled four-fifths of South Vietnam, a contention denied in Saigon.

But before any of this happens, Thuy repeated that the United States must unconditionally halt its air raids and other attacks on North Vietnam. This has been the issue blocking progress in the talks from the beginning.

Harriman told Thuy in the conference room that "if Hanoi would abandon its futile use of force in attempting to impose its will on South Vietnam, the great benefits of peace could spread rapidly to all parts of Vietnam."

"The sooner North Vietnam stops trying to achieve its goals by military power, the sooner North Vietnam will be able to channel its efforts into peaceful development," he declared.

Big surprise forecast

HHH promises to eke out win

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Hubert H. Humphrey acknowledged Wednesday that he is trailing Richard M. Nixon in the race for the presidency, but said he will defeat the Republican candidate in a "hair-breadth" decision.

"We'll give you the biggest surprise in many, many years," the vice president said.

Humphrey said in a local television interview that he still wants the support of Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy. But he recalled that although McCarthy has refused to endorse him, McCarthy has endorsed Humphrey's running mate, Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine. Humphrey said he took this endorsement of Muskie as a "perverse, inverse, outerverse" endorsement of himself.

The vice president predicted it would be a close election and "very uncertain" with three candidates, but said he felt that his campaign had picked up winning momentum.

Earlier in his St. Louis visit Humphrey complained about what he called "theologians on Vietnam" and "self-appointed presidents and secretaries of state."

Humphrey reacted rather testily when requested at a question and answer session to explain the apparent confusion over whether the United States was on the verge of a bombing halt.

This was shortly after Humphrey received a conference call from the White House to all the presidential candidates telling them there had been no breakthrough in Vietnam peace negotiations, despite widespread reports of a U.S. proposal to halt completely the bombing of North Vietnam.

Humphrey took the call backstage at the gymnasium at Christian Brothers College High School while several hundred persons waited in the gym.

Humphrey said that contradictory statements on such matters as the bombing halt as well as on Vietnam policy in general "sometimes are the result of the opinions of people rather than facts."

Humphrey said that George Christian, White House press secretary, had stated "what the situation is."

But Humphrey added "anything that I say today, if I should stutter for a moment, there are theologians on Vietnam that will write a whole new story on it."

Some chanted for the presidential candidacy of Democrat Hubert H. Humphrey, some proclaimed their support for third party candidate George C. Wallace. Some shouted for televised Nixon-Humphrey debate— "Even Custer Took a Stand!"

read one placard and others supported striking California grape pickers.

In his 15-minute radio talk over the National Broadcasting Co., Network Nixon said:

"We must listen to the voices of dissent, sometimes strident, sometimes cool. Not because we want to put ourselves on the back for permitting protest, but because the protesters may have something to say worth listening to."

In summary, Nixon said young people feel over-powered, over-patronized and over-protected. He said a Nixon administration would try to deal effectively with all these problems—first of all by admitting they exist on a broad scale.

Those among his listeners with other ideas represented a variety of political and ideological factions.

Nixon's prerecorded speech was broadcast after he flew here from Kansas City where he packed several thousand supporters—and a few dozen noisy opponents—into the big waiting room of the city's Union Station.

"The train to Washington is pulling out," he told the crowd. "Let's go—all the way."

Thieu's cabinet spreading rumors

SAIGON (AP) — U. S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker met three times Wednesday with President Nguyen Van Thieu, and a senior South Vietnamese official said they discussed a new American proposal for halting all bombing of North Vietnam.

After meeting with Bunker at the presidential palace, Thieu held separate conferences with his Cabinet and top political figures, including Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky and Premier Tran Van Huong.

The senior government official said Thieu told his colleagues that no bombing halt could be imposed without the Saigon government's approval.

This source, who declined to be identified, said Thieu told his Cabinet that the Communists must guarantee that they would not escalate the war if a suspension of all bombing was approved. The South Vietnamese and U.S. governments have insisted on the condition in past discussions. The U.S. delegation at the Paris peace talks also has insisted on this.

Despite the reports of a new U.S. proposal, President Johnson telephoned the major presidential candidates saying, "There has been no basic change in the situation, no breakthrough."

U.S. officials in Saigon remained silent on the subject and military spokesmen said they had no information concerning a suspension of air activity over North Vietnam.

They said there was no change in orders, which meant that U.S. aircraft were scheduled to be in action as usual today over the panhandle of North Vietnam.

Some South Vietnamese sources said Thieu had planned to make a television speech Wednesday night to discuss the American proposal but he did not appear. There was no official word on whether the appearance was canceled or even if it had been scheduled.

Adding to the speculation about a bombing halt was a report that Vietnamese security officials were alerted to watch for an announcement that might precipitate popular reaction.

A suspension of the bombing could be expected to be opposed by Catholics in South Vietnam, more than a million of whom fled North Vietnam after the defeat of the French in 1954.

The U.S. Command Wednesday did not report a single ground action involving American troops. The South Vietnamese command reported only one significant engagement, in which government troops sweeping the eastern flank of the demilitarized zone killed 30 North Vietnamese Tuesday.

One American commander said: "It's just like it was before mid-August. There was a lot of speculation then that the enemy had de-escalated."

The U.S. officers say that instead of de-escalating, the North Vietnamese have been hit hard by B52 bomber raids and allied capture of huge arms and food caches.

According to one U.S. officer in the 3rd Corps region between Saigon and the Cambodian border, three main force North Vietnamese divisions "just seem to have disappeared into the woodwork."

U.S. bombing continues

SAIGON AP — While widespread reports persisted of a U.S. proposal to halt completely the bombing of North Vietnam, American fighter-bombers continued their raids across the country's southern panhandle Wednesday.

Military spokesmen said Air Force jets ranged 50 miles above the demilitarized zone Wednesday to hit North Vietnamese supply routes, truck parks and storage areas below the 19th parallel bombing boundary.

New York strike drags on

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor John V. Lindsay moved to end the tieup of New York City's 1.1 million pupil public school system Wednesday, setting up a special panel to mediate a city-wide teachers' strike.

The Republican mayor acted amid mounting pressure from distraught parents for an end to the strike of the AFL-CIO United Federation of Teachers, with its grave racial undercurrents.

Named to direct the mediation effort was Theodore Kheel, an ace trouble shooter for the city in many labor disputes. As Lindsay took action the schools themselves were all but empty, 14 days of education already sacrificed in the new fall semester.

The teachers' walkout, the third in less than six weeks by UFT President Albert Shanker and his 55,000 predominantly white union members, followed the continued refusal of Brooklyn's Negro and Puerto Rican Ocean Hill-Brownsville experimental school district to reinstate 80 ousted white teachers to classrooms.

Another experimental district, Two Bridges, on the lower East Side of Manhattan, threatened to join Ocean Hill in revolt against the UFT and the Board of Education.

The Two Bridges' district comprises Chinese, Puerto Rican, Negro and white families, and its five schools have 5,600 pupils.

Ocean Hill, with eight schools and 8,000 pupils, and Two Bridges were set up experimentally last year to test the concept of community control of education. Their local governing bodies were given semiautonomous responsibility for operations.

The 80 white teachers were ousted by the Ocean Hill governing board on charges they opposed the decentralization experiment.

Astronauts spinning on

SPACE CENTER, HOUSTON (AP) — Happy and relaxed, the Apollo 7 astronauts sped into the last half of their 4.5-million-mile space adventure Wednesday night with the prospect of shining in America's dawn skies like a morning star.

The milestone passed at 7:52 p.m. (CDT), with Command Pilot Walter M. Schirra Jr. and engineer Walter Cunningham awake, but navigator Donn F. Eisele was said to be asleep.

At the precise moment of midpoint, two clocks in Apollo Control read exactly the same at 129 hours and 50 minutes. One of the clocks counts the elapsed time of the flight, and another counts down to the minute of retrofire that shoots Apollo 7 out of orbit Tuesday.

Counting the amount of time it takes the Apollo to come out of orbit and parachute to the sea, the mid-point came at 8:08 p.m. CDT.

90 mph hurricane

Gladys lashes Cuba, Florida next

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Hurricane Gladys mauled Cuba with hammering wind and rain Wednesday, then howled into the Florida Straits and aimed a 90-mile-an-hour punch at the metropolitan Tampa Bay area.

of Florida's west coast.

As the thinly populated southwest tip of Florida and the Keys braced for hurricane winds during the night, first reports from Cuba told of serious flash floods and possibly heavy damage to crops and industrial installations.

Havana Radio said some homes and buildings were undermined by water and partially collapsed in Havana.

The reports, coming as Gladys left Cuba behind, made no mention of deaths or injuries.

Some 4,000 persons had been evacuated from low-lying areas and 35,000 head of livestock driven to higher ground.

In early evening the storm's center was 240 miles southwest of Miami near latitude 23.7 North, longitude 82.3 West.

The National Hurricane Center, warning that the storm's winds would build up to 100 m.p.h., said its northward course would take it crashing into the Tampa-St. Petersburg area of more than one million population some time today.

But residents were urged to take immediate precautions for winds reaching gale force by daybreak.

Hurricanes usually weaken over land areas but Gladys apparently grew madder in the Cuba crossing. Her winds increased from 80 to 90 m.p.h. Gales lashed outward 150 miles to the north and east of the center.

Back over water, Gladys stepped up her forward speed to 14 m.p.h., on a heading that would bring hurricane winds to the lower Florida Keys during the night.

Local flooding was forecast for south Florida as the huge rain shield of the hurricane spread over the state.

Wind and driving rain lashed Cuba's Isle of Pines, once a feared political prison that Fidel Castro turned into a Communist training camp for young people and nicknamed "Isle of Youth."

Arlington burial for Musmanno

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Taps were played before the flag-draped casket of Michael A. Musmanno as Pennsylvanians paid tribute Wednesday to the man who won international recognition as a jurist and was wounded in both World Wars.

More than 80 relatives from across the country and visiting dignitaries were among over 500 persons who came to pay their last respects to the late Pennsylvania Supreme Court justice at St. Paul's Cathedral.

A military honor guard made up of seven men from all the Armed Services carried the coffin from the church where Catholic Bishop John J. Wright had offered a requiem mass.

He was to be buried at Arlington National Cemetery just outside Washington.

Gov. Raymond Shafer, Lt. Gov. Raymond Broderick, Pittsburgh Mayor Joseph M. Barr and Visachau Ben Yackov, a representative from the state of Israel, were among those who came to pay their last respects to the 71-year-old justice who died last Saturday night 36 hours after suffering a stroke in his apartment.

Samuel V. Albo, a lifetime friend of Musmanno who worked with him during the Sacco-Vanzetti case, was one of a number of old friends at St. Paul's.

Musmanno was wounded in both World Wars and retired from the Navy with the rank of rear admiral. He was Naval aide to Army Gen. Mark Clark during the historic crossing of the Po River in World War II.

Musmanno was the son of the Italian immigrants and worked as a coal miner before going to college. He acquired seven degrees from five universities.

Musmanno waged several successful political campaigns. He only lost one major contest and that was to Genevieve Blatt for the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate in 1964.

Friends and dignitaries pay last respects to famed jurist Michael A. Musmanno as military pallbearers carry casket from St. Paul's Cathedral in Pittsburgh Wednesday. Bishop John J. Wright, who offered requiem mass, referred to Musmanno's recollections of "coal and iron police and of the frustrations of workers in the days of his boyhood."

Experience at Pinehurst yields new approach to patient care

HARRISBURG (AP) — The Shafer administration's efforts to correct conditions at Pinehurst State School and hospital in Chester County have yielded a new approach to the treatment of mental patients.

A spokesman for the governor said Wednesday that studies by Shafer's office and the Department of Public Welfare have resulted in a de-emphasis of the large, comprehensive facility, such as Pinehurst, and a move to create "a better type of environment" for mental patients.

The newer "environment," he said, would be based on a "cottage type" living and treatment arrangement, accommodating fewer patients than the present facilities, which have been criticized as overcrowded and understaffed.

The spokesman said Gov. Shafer was encouraged to learn that a smaller treatment center being built at the White Haven State School and Hospital, Luzerne County, would be ready before Jan. 5, when 1,000 pupils are scheduled to be transferred from Pinehurst.

About 300 of the 600 beds available in the new treatment center will be available to Pinehurst transfers. Thus, the source said, the White Haven center should classify as the first "experiment" toward a projected network of smaller centers.

The governor ordered the transfers in July after intensive criticism had built up in the Philadelphia area over the management of the school and hospital. In a series of developments, a resident physician at Pinehurst was suspended for improperly using a drug on a patient, a film was made depicting insufficient physical conditions at the school, and a gubernatorial inspection team toured Pinehurst, confirming the inadequacies that were charged.

The governor's office placed great urgency on the transfers. Earlier this week, when a deputy health secretary was quoted as saying the transfers were delayed, he was summoned to the governor's office, and, according to one of Shafer's aides, reprimanded for making the remarks.

"The governor wants to see a better type of environment for mental patients," the aide said.

 State support: $260,709
 Total revenue: $898,555

The accountants audited the books on an accrual basis figuring both accounts receivable and payable and arrived at an ending cash balance of $156,443 ($100,000 invested).

The district operated well within the 1967-68 budget of $839,547. This budget contained a provision for a $44,000 rental on the new building in the event it would come due during the fiscal year. This helped make possible the transfer of $200,000 into the Capital Reserve Fund.

The 1968-69 budget is $1,041,906.

With a $4 mill tax, taxpayers might take some comfort by comparisons with Wayne County.

West End church fete Sunday

GILBERT — Homecoming services will be held Sunday for all former members of Salem Evangelical and Reformed Church in Gilbert with reunion of members of the 50th Confirmation class, the Rev. Wilmer C. Mantz, pastor, announced.

Dr. Floyd Shafer of Tatamy, pastor emeritus in his 80th year, will be the guest speaker to deliver the sermon with Anna Strohl of the Jerusalem Church as soloist. A luncheon will follow the service.

The annual services mark the 182nd year of the church history which started with a log building on Nov. 13, 1886, replaced by second structure in August 1873 which was destroyed by fire on May 23, 1949. The present stone church was dedicated Sunday, Sept. 26, 1951.

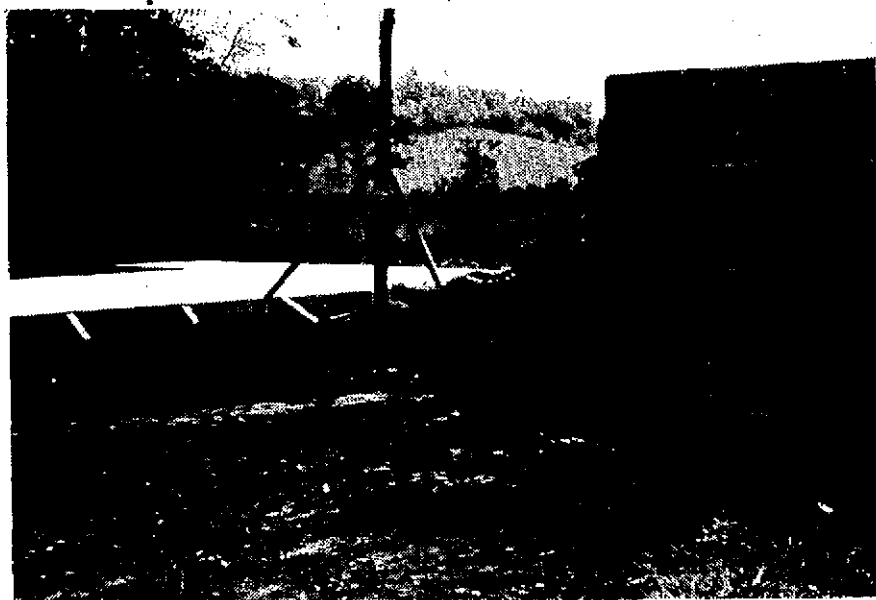

Rev. Mantz celebrates his 35th year in the ministry and his second pastorate at the Pleasant Valley Church which also includes Jerusalem Church in Trachsville. He served the charge from 1937 to 1940 and returned in June 1966.

MILFORD — Pike County Commissioners were commended in a report of an inspection by the Bureau of Correction of the State Department of Justice of the jail of that county for the physical status of the institution.

It was noted in the report to the commissioners that "the jail continued to be maintained in clean and tidy fashion." It was stated that at the time of the inspection it was learned that no prisoners were confined in the jail since August 4, 1968.

There were indications, according to the report, that the basic operational and management policies of the jail and the inmate activities program remain unchanged.

The report made no recommendations to the county officials relating to the prison.

Red Cross seeks women for clubmobile service

STROUDSBURG — Young single women who are college graduates and interested in "doing something significant and exciting," were asked to contact Mrs. H. J. LaBar, executive director of the Monroe County Chapter of Red Cross.

"The Red Cross," Mrs. LaBar said, "is greatly expanding its overseas clubmobile program, particularly in South Vietnam. Currently, there are 20 Red Cross centers there, and many more will be added."

"To be able to spend an hour away from the war, talking with American girls and participating in an organized recreational program can mean a lot to a young man far from home."

Mrs. LaBar explained that clubs and recreational facilities for servicemen in South Vietnam "are few and far between. The Red Cross Clubmobile is the only facility that not only has a fixed location where the troops can come, but actually takes the programs to the servicemen in the field as security permits."

Recent college graduates with some experience in the recreation field are especially desired for these jobs, Mrs. LaBar said. She urged qualified young women who are interested in the program to apply. The local Red Cross chapter is located at 509 Scott St., Stroudsburg.

A round table discussion on the main topic will start at 8:50 a.m. until 10:15 a.m. including divisions: mathematics, science, social studies, creative arts, language arts, pragmatic, physical education, administration and special delegation.

Discussion will include: the harmony of elementary and secondary objectives; continuity in the program of studies; whether text and instructional materials are sufficiently sequenced and up-to-date; outstanding strengths and weaknesses of present program; priorities for program improvement.

Secondary department meeting will follow from 10:30 a.m. to 11:45 a.m. For the elementary teachers, the Rev. Philip N. Jurus will speak.

The afternoon session, from 1:15 p.m. to 2:45 p.m. in the auditorium, will feature Dr. Michael Gilligan from East Stroudsburg State College, discussing "A Concerned Educator Looks at Education."

Iglehart lauds Zambia nation

PEN ARGYL — In his address to the International Relations Club of Pen Argyl Area High School on Wednesday afternoon, Dr. Robert Iglehart, Dean of Moravian Seminary for Girls, spoke highly of the political acumen of President Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia, where Dr. Iglehart spent two years at the African-American Institute.

Dr. Iglehart's work in Zambia was to arrange foreign scholarships for young Zambians. Other African heads of state whom Dr. Iglehart commended were President Julius Nyerere of Tanzania and President Jomo Kenyatta of Kenya.

Milford police chief quits; council seeking replacement

MILFORD — The Milford Borough Council at a special meeting Tuesday night accepted the resignation of Police Chief Norman Hotalen. The resignation will be effective November 1.

Borough President Merritt Quinn appointed a special committee consisting of councilmen Norman Helms, Leith Hoffman and Carl Muhlhauser to interview candidates for the police position and make recommendations to the council. Hotalen, whose resignation was tendered for personal reasons, had been chief for four and one-half years.

It was announced during the meeting that Borough Ordinance 145 which prohibits persons under 19 years of age from being on the streets of the village after 9:30 p.m. between the dates of Oct. 24 and Nov. 2 inclusive would again be enforced.

Kowalyshyn for third term

Russell Kowalyshyn, Democrat from Northampton, will be seeking his third term in the Pennsylvania State Legislature on Tuesday, Nov. 5, and he will go to the polls with the endorsement of The Pocono Record.

We feel that Kowalyshyn has done a creditable job for the section of Monroe County he has represented during the past two years. The Northampton native also represents a section of Northampton County in the 138th District.

It has been our opinion that Monroe County deserves to have personal representation in Harrisburg because of its size, location and development. However, of those who represent Monroe County without living within its boundaries, we feel Kowalyshyn has upheld the confidence of the voters as well or better than anyone.

We are particularly attracted to Kowalyshyn because of the manner in which he aided the county, and Tunkhannock Township in particular, when he urged and succeeded in getting Bethlehem to make payment in lieu of taxes for use of water shed property in Tunkhannock Twp.

Although this is Kowalyshyn's third term in the state legislature, it will be only his second as representative of the 138th, a post that became a reality through realignment of legislative districts. He was first elected to the legislature in 1964.

We feel that Kowalyshyn's overall experience and his apparent interest in and knowledge of the 138th District make him the number one choice at the polls against Russell C. Becker, Republican of Northampton R.D. 1, who as yet hasn't been to the real political wars.

Kowalyshyn has a law background and has served as a school director. Becker is a director of the Northampton Monroe County Farmers' Assn. and has been a school director for 21 years, including his post of board president at Northampton at the present time.

Monroe County areas included in the 138th District are Chestnuthill Twp., Eldred, Northern and Southern Hamilton, Jackson, Polk, Ross, Eastern Middle, Middle, Northern and Southern districts of Stroud Twp. and Tunkhannock Twp.

Northampton County's areas in the 138th District are Bath, Chapman, Northampton borough, North Catsaqua, Pen Argyl, Walnutport, Wind Gap, Allen Twp., East Allen, Bushkill Twp., Lehigh Twp., Moore Twp. and Plainfield Twp.

Project developing

Last month's announcement that East Stroudsburg's Brown St. would be turned into a five-lane thoroughfare appeared to be a long way off at that time.

However, suddenly the entire project to be supported by the state has new meaning. In fact, King Beers, executive director of the Monroe County Redevelopment Authority, has indicated that the starting date for the project could be some time in the spring.

Beers also revealed that the cost for the five-lane span from Crystal St. to the Interborough Bridge would be approximately $300,000.

In fact, the project has developed so rapidly that the Allentown District of the State Highway Department has forwarded project plans to the Harrisburg office for approval.

This project ties in with the expansion of the Courtland St. Plaza Project and the proposed shopping center on the Lincoln Ave. Redevelopment Project land, which is also tentatively listed for a spring starting date.

Thus, what appeared to be talk as late as a month ago, suddenly has obtained a concrete status and appears destined to feature an official starting date in the near future.

While the East Stroudsburg project swings into high gear, Stroudsburg is launching the planning phase of the Stofflet St. and First Ward improvement projects.

These projects are among major moves in the growth and expansion of Monroe County.

They also display the importance of proper planning and zoning and the work involved.

Family troubles

WASHINGTON — Republican Presidential Candidate Richard Nixon's smooth running campaign isn't free of family political problems.

Several times in recent days, Nixon has had to step in and straighten out boners made by his brother, Edward, who is working in his New York campaign headquarters.

Illustrative of Edward's political snafus was his handling of a request to Nixon from the politically powerful Consumers Federation of America, an alliance of consumer groups from 50 states.

Federation officials, who earlier this year opened the first consumer office in Washington, directed a questionnaire to the three presidential candidates to obtain their view on major consumer issues.

Each candidate was told that his replies would be printed and circulated to the nation's consumers through state and local groups affiliated with the federation.

After studying the questionnaire, Edward Nixon decided there was no need to have his brother answer it. He dashed off a letter to federation officials, stating:

"My brother's heavily committed schedule has prevented him from replying to your recent correspondence. Since he receives a tremendous amount of questionnaires each week from various groups, he is unable to comply with all requests."

After receiving this apparent brush off, federation officials decided to circulate Edward Nixon's letter without comment along with a three-page reply that arrived in the same mail from Democratic Presidential Candidate Hubert Humphrey.

Warning in time

When a GOP member of congress heard about Edward Nixon's letter from one of the federal officials, he called the GOP presidential candidate directly, saying:

"Dick, your brother is lousing you up with the consumer groups. The Consumers Federation of America wanted your views on some pretty important issues and Edward gave them the brush off. Humphrey sent them a three-page statement and they are going to distribute both to membership."

Nixon immediately had his secretary call the Federation's Washington headquarters to explain that their questionnaire had been "inadvertently misdirected."

"Mr. Nixon wants you to disregard the letter from his brother," his secretary stated. "He is very concerned with this issue and his research staff has been carefully studying it. He will make every attempt to get a statement to you by tomorrow."

The next day one of Nixon's economic advisers called the federation's office in Washington and dictated a long statement on the GOP Presidential Candidate's consumer views.

Another boner

Another of his brother's boners that Nixon had to correct involves letters he wrote about the former vice president's position on the Otto Otepka case.

Otepka, a former State Department security chief, was ousted from his post for cooperating with the Senate Internal Security Committee. He has appealed his ouster.

In answer to letters from conservative Republican leaders seeking Nixon's views on the case, Edward Nixon replied that his brother could not comment since the case was on appeal.

When a friendly reporter traveling with Nixon showed him a copy of one of Edward's letters on Otepka, the GOP Presidential Candidate looked stunned, remarking:

"That isn't my position. I didn't give him authority to write those letters."

Nixon then agreed to an exclusive interview on the Otepka case. In it, he made clear that if elected President Otepka would be accorded the justice denied him for the last five years.

Copies of the interview are now being sent to all persons who write the Nixon headquarters for his comments on the Otepka case. On direct instruction from Nixon, Edward has discontinued his letter writing.

Letters to the Editor

Opposition to high taxes

Editor, The Record

I notice you are for higher and higher taxes. Perhaps you get a commission for your efforts.

Our taxes jumped to where they are six times what they were in 1955, and our land is worth or would sell for very little more than it would have then. Our improvements are worth much less.

Whoever said this land up here in the woods is worth so much ought to have to buy it at the exalted figure.

Land is worth what people will pay for it and taxes that go beyond people's ability or willingness to pay are confiscatory.

I take exception to your efforts for higher taxes. Also, I'm calling you on your forecast of the wettest summer in 30 years when it was the opposite.

NORMAN SOMMERS
Mountainhome

(Editor's Note — We don't favor higher taxes and never will. We, however, do favor the equal payment of taxes by everyone. We also feel that certain taxes are obligated to provide certain revenue.)

Exception to remarks

Editor, The Record

My family and several of our neighbors were shocked to read the statements made by Garner Ted Armstrong, executive vice president of the Worldwide Church of God, as reported in the October 11 issue of The Record.

His comparison of the Catholic prayer—"Hail Mary Full of Grace"—with paper angels parroting to each other on a Christmas Tree, would indicate he is preaching bigotry and hate.

Pocono Township residents live in an ecumenical atmosphere and we can do without this sort of talk.

If Garner Armstrong's beliefs are shared by his membership, the decent people in this area, of all religious beliefs, should encourage them to go elsewhere, and local area businessmen—motel and restaurant proprietors,—should not seek their patronage.

Stories Behind Words

By William Penfield

To Blaze A Trail

The "blaze" in the term "to blaze a trail" has nothing to do with fire.

"Blaze" in this sense comes from the German "blaz" (pale), which became "blesi" in Icelandic. The Icelandic word acquired the meaning of a white star or marking on the forehead of a horse. "Blesi" passed into English as "blaze" with this meaning.

"Blaze" was extended in meaning to denote a white mark on a tree made by chipping off a piece of the bark.

TIP

The origin of the word "tip," meaning a small present or gratuity, is said by some to be an abbreviation of "to insure promptness."

This is not so. The origin lies in one of the meanings of the verb "to tip," a meaning that was taken from rogues' cant of the 17th century. The meaning is "to give" or "to hand to."

The word is still used in this sense in the phrase "to tip her a wink." Thus, to tip a waiter means to give him a small present of money.

Harris survey

Democratic party's future blurred by generation gap

By LOUIS HARRIS

The last time a third-party candidate received over 20 per cent of the vote in a presidential election in this century occurred when Theodore Roosevelt polled 30 per cent as the Bull Moose nominee in 1912. In that election, Roosevelt actually finished second, with incumbent President William Howard Taft finishing third with 25 per cent of the vote.

Back in 1912 the dominant Republican Party was split down the middle, and the election of Woodrow Wilson, a Democrat, was the result. While Wilson was re-elected four years later, he never won more than 50 per cent of the vote either time he ran.

Some analysts see the 1968 election as a development in the now-dominant Democratic Party comparable to what happened to the Republicans in 1912. They view the earlier Eugene McCarthy and more recent George Wallace defections from the Democrats as a signal that the party that became a majority under Franklin Roosevelt in 1932 is coming apart at the seams. Some have even gone so far as to predict that after this election one of the two major parties will simply disappear for good.

Drastic happenings

Certainly, the generational revolt symbolized by the McCarthy crusade during the primary season is deep and real. Although people under 35 constitute only 21 per cent of the electorate compared with 46 per cent who are over 50, there is little doubt that drastic things are happening among young voters in this country.

Roughly three young voters in 10 still express an identity with Sen. McCarthy. But another 25 per cent also express an intent now to vote for Wallace. It can be said that a majority of younger voters is disaffected—one way or another — from the mainstream of American politics today.

Beginning in 1952, it began to be evident that the old Democratic one-party hold on the south was being broken. This fact was no more dramatically illustrated than in 1964, when Barry Goldwater was shut out in the electoral vote except for his home state of Arizona and the deep south states of Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia and South Carolina.

Now, in 1968, there is a chance that Wallace will complete the break of the deep South with the Democrats, if he wins most of the states below the Mason-Dixon line.

Yet it must also be remembered that 20 per cent of the vote in the south this year is likely to be Negro, and a majority of the Democratic governors in the region cannot be classified as Wallace supporters.

The Pennsylvania Story

Consumer forgotten

HARRISBURG — Following the recent hearing by the State Insurance Department on the rate increase proposed by Blue Cross, there was the usual flurry of claptrap pro and con on the issue but seemingly one of the most critical points was overlooked.

There was, as usual, the long parade of witnesses representing the industry (seen at all rate hearings by the Insurance Department, the Public Utility Commission, the Milk Control Board (now the Milk Marketing Board) etc.

Who represented the public, the "consumer"? Absolutely no one—except Reuben H. Miller, legislative representative of the Pennsylvania State Employees Council, who decided to go to the hearing at the last minute to represent state employees who pay roughly half of their Blue Cross out of their own pockets (the state pays the rest).

"Why wasn't the Bureau of Consumer Protection there?" is the question that immediately leaps to mind. Isn't this bureau charged with "protecting" the consumer?

Depends on bill
It should be and it could be, depending on just which form a bill that gives the bureau certain powers is in when it finally completes its legislative journey.

Incidentally, this is one of the important bills—perhaps the most important left hanging when the Republican leaders of the legislature decided to take a four-month break in July—but it is not on the agenda proposed by the same GOP leaders for the "lame duck" session that will follow the November elections!

The history of this critical section of the bill—921—is interesting.

Originally, the bill gave the bureau certain powers, but added that the bureau "shall not be in substitution for the obligations of the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission, or Milk Control Commission or other agencies having a duty to safeguard the consumer, but shall be carried out independently thereof."

However, just to make sure there were no doubt about the fact that private interests did not want the Bureau of Consumer Protection "messing around" in their fields, Section 921 was re-written to say that the bureau "shall not duplicate or interfere with the function of any commonwealth agency having the power and duty to protect consumer interests in a particular field."

Enter Representative Russell J. LaMarca, a chubby Democrat from Reading. LaMarca regularly keeps the House of Representatives in stitches with his Italian jokes, but this time he was in dead seriousness.

"I didn't know what the first version of Section 921 meant, but I was hoping it would be interpreted to mean that the Bureau of Consumer Protection would represent the public at all rate hearings," he said. "I was sure what the second version meant and I didn't like it."

LaMarca was successful in changing the words "shall duplicate or interfere back to 'shall not be in substitution.'"

Then he tried to rewrite the bill a little further. He attempted to amend the bill to set up the office of "Peoples Attorney" and to designate the "Peoples Attorney" as the official representative of the citizens of the commonwealth at all rate hearings.

The amendment went down to defeat with only one Republican and 87 Democrats voting in favor and 94 Republicans and no Democrats opposed.

Nixon declined on the ground that a recount would take weeks, during which the nation would be bedeviled and leaderless. The selfless decision impressed the Kennedy camp. Richard Cardinal Cushing made a point of telephoning Nixon to thank him for the manner in which he had campaigned and had accepted defeat.

Bob Considine

Veto from on high

NEW YORK — People... places... Chalk up another "first" for Wally Schirra. He's the first man to hurl a veto down from outer space. He told his pal Deke Slayton, ground manager of the Apollo Seven flight, he absolutely refused to go through with the magical nonsense of turning on the on-board television set to show America how Astronauts eat.

He and his buddies had too damn much to do up there to be tinkering around. Besides, he said, he had sniffles.

He's all man, Schirra, and a product of a father and mother who provided the country with a few thrills and chills when Wally was a baby. Walter M. Schirra, Sr., was a barnstormer who made a living flying a stunt plane at county fairs.

Mrs. Schirra played the straight-man's role. She stood on the wing during the loops.

How could a couple like that come up with anybody but an astronaut?

A suggestion was made to Dick Nixon before he flew to Dallas last week: Why not make an informal visit to the John F. Kennedy memorial in Dealey Plaza?

The candidate weighed the proposal for a moment, then said:

"If I were going to Dallas on any other kind of mission than the one I'm now on, that would be about the first thing I'd do. But with all these reporters and cameramen following me, a visit would get out of hand. Some writers and people in general would think I was trying to make political hay out of the tragedy."

Kennedy and Nixon were better friends than their 1960 debates and cross-fire indicated. After his defeat by the proverbial (and perhaps actual) whiskey, Nixon's closest advisers strongly urged him to contest the validity of the Illinois and Texas vote-count.

Nixon declined on the ground that a recount would take weeks, during which the nation would be bedeviled and leaderless. The selfless decision impressed the Kennedy camp. Richard Cardinal Cushing made a point of telephoning Nixon to thank him for the manner in which he had campaigned and had accepted defeat.

Age, presidential race also factors

State dove, hawk fight for U.S. senate seat

(Editors note: The following is the first in a series on some of the major U.S. Senate races to be decided Nov. 5.)

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — In Pennsylvania, the important U.S. Senate fight involves a strong dove against a mild hawk, age against youth, and how the three-cornered race for president goes.

The direction is in doubt. Though the Vietnam war is a big issue, there are differences on law and order, gun controls, funds for rebuilding cities—and the result Nov. 5 likely will be a cliffhanger, with the Democratic incumbent considered in deep trouble.

Joseph Sill Clark, the veteran, graying Democrat seeking a third six-year term, is used to tough battles. His victories in 1956 and 1962 were close, both times reversing Republican top-of-the-ticket trends in the Keystone State. He predicts he'll do it again.

Republican challenger Richard S. Schweiker is a youthful, more photogenic for television, anyway, four-term Congressman from the middle-class, white-collar Philadelphia suburbs. He is hoping Clark's penchant to alienate his own party supporters will provide enough "anti" muscle to give him the election.

Clark, 67, is the dove. The former Philadelphia mayor proudly dates his opposition to the Vietnam fighting back to 1965 when it was an unpopular position. Now, he says, other politicians are hollering "me too."

Schweiker, 42, supports generally the present American war policy, including the limited bombing. He even claims it is a posture he promoted before President Johnson adopted it.

The cagey Clark, a tough campaigner with solid labor and liberal support, pooh-poohs and he-ha's this war stance, says Schweiker has neither foreign policy nor military expertise. Clark, a millionaire lawyer twice-divorced and recently remarried, insists he's "a man who owns his own soul... with guts enough to tell it like it is." In this vein he says frankly that the Democrats are in trouble in Pennsylvania, that they must carry Philadelphia by at least 250,000 to win the state. His 1962 margin in his hometown was 180,000; it was 171,000 in 1956.

Again and again, in face-to-face television debate with Schweiker—they've already met three times with one more ground set for the end of October—Clark twits his GOP opponent for always being against everything, and also accuses him of lying.

"Now, you know, Dick, that is an untruth," is the way Clark hurls back statements made by Schweiker.

But the congressman, unflinching, flings Clark's words right back, often quoting from the senator's speeches, statements and letters.

Both men are considered in the liberal mold. Schweiker has been likened, on the national GOP scene, as a young comer in the image of Mayor John Lindsay of New York. When they serve together in Congress their views frequently coincided.

Schweiker has been crisscrossing the state in his effort to reach as many of Pennsylvania's five million registered voters as possible. He walks the streets of middle-class neighborhoods, plods the worn bricks of the slum areas, shakes thousands of hands at factory gates, works the aisles and checkout counters of supermarkets.

"I think you just have to get out and meet the people," says Schweiker, a handsome, outgoing father of four. His youthful exuberance, face unmarked by age, is sharply contrasted to the picture Clark presents. Clark, recognizing this, asks voters to look at his face — "there are some lines in it, lines of care and concern."

Until recently Clark confined his appearances to the TV debates and some party rallies. Apparently miffed at Schweiker claims that he's afraid to face the voters, Clark has started weekend street campaigning and is being seen more frequently at labor and community gatherings.

But Clark hasn't softened his bluntness. Asked once when taxes might be reduced, he replied, "Look, my friend, you can't sit on your rear end... and let the rest of the world go round. I'm not going to do anything to reduce your taxes... The needs of the cities are too desperate." The race actually hasn't fired up any hard voter interest. Neither man is attracting big crowds on his own—only when they share the same platform with their party's candidates for president or vice president.

Highway Act could keep unstable from driving

MINNEAPOLIS — The breakfast argument could have started with burnt toast, a grumpy husband, a frumpy wife. In any event, as Dr. Frederick L. McGuire, a Los Angeles psychologist, tells the story, the husband fled in his car with his wife in hot pursuit in hers.

She caught him at an intersection and rammed his car. Then she backed off several times and rammed the car again and again, as if she was competing in a demolition derby. The terrified husband finally escaped his crumpled vehicle and ran down the street.

But his loving wife sped after him and chased him up onto the sidewalk where she tried to drive over him.

This woman was emotionally disturbed.

So are millions of other "normal" drivers every day as a result of personal experiences on or off the highway, a survey by the Family Economics Bureau of Northwestern National Life Insurance Co., Minneapolis, reveals.

These drivers currently are being exposed for their complicity in the death of 1,000 people a week on U. S. highways.

The survey quotes authorities who estimate that up to 80 per cent of traffic accidents are caused mainly by the emotional conditions of drivers.

People even commit suicide with their cars, says J. Standard Baker of the Traffic Institute of Northwestern University. Baker wrote the first textbook on traffic accident investigation and has investigated thousands of fatal accidents. He estimates that five per cent of traffic fatalities (2,655 people in 1967) are suicides or victims of suicide drivers.

Exactly the same estimate was made, independently, by Dr. Robert Litman of the Los Angeles Suicide Prevention Center. He has interviewed thousands of suicidal drivers.

Motor vehicle suicide rarely is mentioned publicly because few traffic officers know enough about engineering and physics to distinguish a suicide crash from an accidental crash, the Northwestern National Life survey found.

National attention was focused on emotional causes of traffic accidents by the Second Annual Traffic Safety Research Symposium. A third Symposium is scheduled for Jan. 27 to 29, 1969, in Chicago.

Highway Act

The Federal Aid Highway Act of 1968 requires states to evaluate drivers suspected of emotional instability. Driver licenses could be denied until applicants.

A driver's emotions — anger, depression, fear, elation and others — impair his perception and delay or block his reactions. He may look directly at a stop light, then drive through it, or fail to see a car merging with his traffic lane.

Emotion is a drug. It inhibits the brain's decision-making and risk-taking processes. Drugged by anger, a driver bent on revenge will take risks a Grand Prix racing champion avoids, Dr. Ward Edwards, University of Michigan psychologist, found.

One California driver whose judgment was paralyzed by emotion aimed his car for a head-on collision. Everyone but him, in both cars, was killed.

Why did he do it? "I wanted to teach the ——— to dim his lights when he sees a car coming toward him," he said from his hospital bed.

Drivers arrogantly seize the right-of-way by using the threat of collision as a weapon; their cars explode from crosswalks, bumper to bumper with challengers, trailing a blue haze of vaporized rubber and exhaust fumes; and they leapfrog from lane to lane, white-knuckled, hunched over the steering wheel, for the sake of two or three car-lengths advantage.

What makes people act this way?

"Normal individuals" under stress usually are antagonistic, impulsive and openly aggressive or despondent or absorbed in their problems, reports the American Medical Association's Committee on Automotive Injuries and Deaths.

Suicide accidents

The assertion that suicide accidents occur is supported by Dr. John F. Edmund of the University of Missouri School of Medicine. Four drivers in 11 fatal Kansas City accidents that he studied had histories of suicidal threats and attempts; and three drivers threatened suicide shortly before their fatal accidents.

Forty patients who attempted suicide or homicide, or both, by auto were discovered by Dr. John M. MacDonald, associate professor of psychiatry at the University of Colorado School of Medicine.

Just Between Us—

By Bobby Westbrook

In these days, when so much of the news seems to deal with incomprehensible things: teachers strikes, school riots, adults storming school buses, students being arrested for drug addiction, astronauts nursing colds and broadcasting from outer space; ad-men selling candidates for the Presidency of the United States through non-linear commercials—

In these days, the family fare pages seem a refuge for those of us who are still pretty linear. That is, we still learn by reading words with a commonly accepted meaning arranged in grammatical sequence; and we expect events to follow a cause and effect sequence.

The changes are many: more people, more organizations, more projects; new leaders coming on, new programs reflecting new developments, like the women's clubs selling vigilante whistles for safety's sake. Surprising but understandable.

In a community where nobody used to even lock their doors, it's disturbing to have people ask: "Please don't put anything in the paper about our going away. Burglars, you know."

But the basic news remains the same. People are getting married now as they did 50 years ago as the golden weddings testify. Babies are born and PTA's function and women get together to learn how to dry flowers or sew for Christmas or review books. Sunday school classes fill Christmas stockings; women houseclean saving the discards for rummage sales, and children have birthdays.

But maybe we're the real news after all; maybe the more things change, the more they are the same; and maybe the leaves that are flaring and fading and falling don't mean that all the trees have finished their function. Trees are pretty linear, too.

Trooper on drug addiction at Woman's Club meeting

NEWFOUNDLAND — Since "Crime" is the State Federation theme for the year, the Greene-Dreher Woman's Club in their first meeting of the season heard Trooper Joseph Moraz, of the Dunmore Barracks, speak on the uses and abuses of narcotics.

Meeting at the Newfoundland Elementary Center with Mrs. Nancy Crocker presiding, the women saw a film, "The Pit of Despair," which detailed the terrifying experiences of withdrawal from drugs, and the story of drug addiction.

Trooper Moraz stressed the importance of notifying local authorities of the presence of drug addicts in the area so that they may be helped. The women reported that the film was most interesting and very enlightening, and the speaker pointed out that it is available for showing for the education of organizations and students, stressing that the "most vulnerable age is from 10-25."

The club, during their business session which followed the program, voted a $100 donation to the Greene-Dreher-Sterling Athletic Association for the repair of the tennis court at the school.

The club also approved the sale as a club project of "The Vigilante," a combination keychain-flashlight-whistle which may be carried by women and used as needed. They also approved sale of reversible placemats to raise funds for their service work.

A donation was made to UNICEF. It was announced that dues, covering from October, 1968, to October, 1969, are now payable to Mrs. Robert Miller, Newfoundland.

Three memorial books have been placed in the Newfoundland Area Public Library in memory of three local clubwomen: Anna Akers, Mildred Spencer and Katherine Louser.

Refreshments were served by Jackie Croft, Doris Bartleson, Virginia Baughan, Camilla Bloss, Estella Christman and Helen Cron.

November's refreshment committee includes Ethel Akers, Peggy Bancroft, Peggy Beehn, Ruth Cunningham, Joyce Cykosky and Connie Edwards.

As a final reminder, Mrs. Crocker suggested that all members vote on November 5.

Ann Landers

Hostility, not love

Dear Ann Landers: My husband has been in and out of a mental hospital for the last four years. He has tried to commit suicide five times. He has also tried to kill me.

Our youngest daughter is 20. She continually berates me for "not letting Papa come home." She insists I am putting him in his grave by keeping him locked up away from his family. She keeps telling me it is my fault because Papa is sick — that I nagged him into insanity. When she talks this way I get so depressed I can't eat or sleep.

My two older daughters understand. This girl does not. I have asked her to speak to the doctors but she refuses. What can I do?

BUFFALO

Dear Buff: You can ask the doctor to write a short letter to your 20-year-old explaining the necessity of keeping her father hospitalized. It is not her love for her father but her hostility toward you that makes her behave this way. When you understand this you will no longer permit her to make you feel guilty, which is, of course, her prime motivation.

Dear Ann Landers: What does a woman do after 20 years of marriage when her 43-year-old husband comes to her and asks for a divorce? I am 39 and have four wonderful children. I love my husband and was shocked when he told me he has fallen out of love and wants to be free so he can recapture that old feeling.

I suggested counseling and he said it would be useless. He wants out. I feel lost and frightened. Two of our children are quite young and I'm afraid I cannot raise them alone. I am panic stricken and bewildered and can't figure out what happened. What should I do?

ST. LOUIS

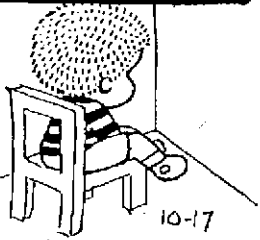

Dear S.L.: It sounds as if your husband has already "recaptured that old feeling" — with somebody else. Tell him he is free to move out, but no divorce.

After 20 years of marriage and four children, a man has no right to flake off just because he's found a little more excitement elsewhere. He has an obligation to stick with his family — and make the best of whatever feeling there is.

Sometimes these lover boys get their fill of fooling around when the glamor of stolen moments and secret rendezvous has worn off. They miss their kids and regain their sanity and go back home where they belong.

Children's Letters To God

Dear God,
My father is mean.
Please get him not to be.
But don't hurt him.
Sincerely,
Martin

Yesterday, This Girl Bought Seventy-two Winter Suits...

Sound like a husband's nightmare? Not really. She's a buyer for a Pennsylvania department store.

It's a delightful job, but not the easiest one in the world. Pennsylvania consumers are accustomed to having the best variety of goods available in the outstanding stores and shopping malls that are everywhere in the Commonwealth.

Now, if you're a husband, you may not ever want your wife to see a Pennsylvania store.

But if you're a wife, there's this store in Pennsylvania where they have some great-looking winter suits...

seems fully recovered. In fact, he's too darned frisky for his own good. If my husband knew how this "cripple" chases me around the house he'd make me quit this job.

The insurance company is paying for the patient's care, which means he's in no hurry to go back to his job. In the meantime, I am worn out. He has given me four raises and the money looks awfully good. What should I do?

J. L.

Dear J.L.: Any guy who is well enough to chase the nurse is well enough to go to work. Tell him you're leaving next week. NO money is THAT good.

Dear Ann Landers: A friend of mine has attached herself to me like a mustard plaster. She telephones every morning and asks, "What are you doing today?" If I say, "I am going shopping," she says, "I'll come along." If I say, "I'm going to the movies or to the art gallery, or to a rummage sale," she says, "I'll come along."

I can't have a card game or a couple of friends in for coffee without inviting her, too. She knows every move I make. Don't tell me to drop her because she would give me the shirt off her back. When I need someone to take my kids, she's Johnny-on-the-spot. When I was sick she nursed me around the clock. What do you suggest?

HEMMED IN

Dear Hem: If you really want to be rid of this mustard plaster — I mean friend — stop asking her to do favors, like taking care of your kids and nursing you around the clock. When you are no longer obligated, you will feel free to live your own life. Until then, it's going to be more of the same, and you can bet on it.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Cut out long kisses

KISS BREAKING: (Q.) I met a boy this past summer whom I liked very much. The problem is that I never quite understood why he dropped me.

We dated frequently for several weeks, and he was a gentleman and friendly on every date. But, one night he asked me, "How come you never break a kiss?" I don't know why he asked that question then and I still don't.

The last time I saw him at the gas station where he worked, he came out all smiles, started a friendly conversation and said he would see me that night or the next.

I never heard from him again! Why? Was I supposed to break kisses? If he wanted to drop me, why did he get my hopes up at our last meeting? — A Reader in Greenwich, Conn.

(A.) Your not breaking kisses is not a logical reason to end a romance, but evidently this bugged him or he wouldn't have asked that question. So, don't be so available for long kisses with the next boy you really like.

There is a remote chance that someone said something to him

Thieves break into garage

CRESCO — Barrett Township Police are investigating the breaking into and the larceny of several items at Ray Price Motors, Inc., Cresco.

Chief William Everett said the entry was discovered Monday at 7:45 a.m. by Ray Price Sr. when he arrived to open the garage for business.

Taken from the garage were four guns and $30 in cash. The guns are a 12-gauge shotgun, an antique rifle, .38 caliber revolver, and a .22 caliber revolver.

Everett said entrance was gained by breaking a back door of the garage.

about you that was untrue, but there are so many reasons why a boy can change his mind that the only important consideration is that he did change his mind.

Be friendly to him at school this fall. You may get him back, and then you can find out what you did wrong. When you do, let me know! And, good luck...

RUDOLPH: (Q.) I have a red nose. It's not sunburned, I don't have a cold and there are no big red pimples on it! How can I conceal it? — H. in Eureka, Calif.

(A.) A beige shade of foundation used under your loose powder is often an effective cover up for redness.

U.S. to sell Israel jets

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson told Secretary of State Dean Rusk on Wednesday to start negotiations with Israel on her long-standing bid to buy 50 F4 Phantom jet fighter planes from the United States.

Both Democratic presidential nominee Hubert H. Humphrey and Republican Richard M. Nixon have come out for such action—and so did Congress by voting a special provision into the new foreign aid bill.

Johnson made no mention of the U.S. political campaign in a statement issued as he signed the aid measure—but he noted the proviso favoring supersonic jets for Israel if needed for her defense against hostile Arab neighbors.

"In the light of this expression of the sense of the Congress," Johnson said, "I am asking the secretary of state to initiate negotiations with the government of Israel and to report back to me."

Israel smashed most of the air power of her Arab enemies in her lightning victory in June of 1967. But since then the Soviets have re-outfitted the air forces of their Arab allies with more modern planes. Egypt is now reported to have some 400 war planes.

Couple given temporary custody of grandson

STROUDSBURG — A Pocono Summit couple won temporary custody of their two-year-old grandson during a habeas corpus hearing Wednesday before President Judge Arlington W. Williams.

The order was entered in the custody case brought by Bonnie Lou Custred, 1835 W. Main St., Stroudsburg, against her husband, Gary Custred.

Judge Williams continued the hearing pending the outcome of an independent investigation and the judge advised the husband to engage an attorney to represent him.

Thirty students from Delaware Valley High School in Milford, at the invitation of Judge Arlington W. Williams, sat in on the case.

The pupils visited court to observe what takes place in a courtroom.

Robert Smith, a teacher at the high school and former Delaware Water Gap Police Chief, teaches the class on criminal law.

Mrs. Custred claims that her husband left their trailer home last Tuesday night and since that time has been keeping their son, Gary Jr., in the home of his mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Custred.

The father was not represented during the hearing, while Bonnie Lou was represented by Atty. James R. Marsh.

Three-way debate set

EASTON — Peter G. Cohen, Common Sense ticket candidate for Congress from the 15th District, will be one of three participants in an informal debate Thursday at 8:30 p.m. in the Jewish Community Center, Easton.

The others will be Congressman Fred B. Rooney, and Paul Henderson, Republican candidate for congress.

The judge said that legal precedent required him to award custody of the young child to the mother, but he was not convinced that she was providing proper care for her son.

On the witness stand, Bonnie Lou, 19, told of constant arguing between she and her husband, which at various times ended in her being physically beaten.

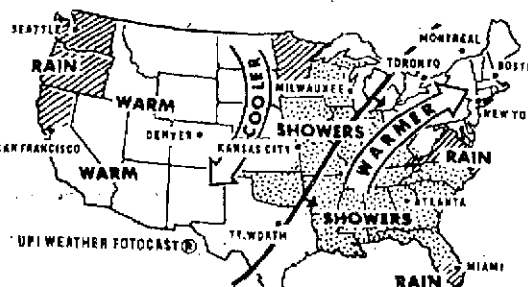

She testified that her husband left her last Tuesday after accusing her of being out with another man. She also claimed that the father whipped the child on several occasions with his belt.

Both parents testified that the baby was shunted between baby sitters while the parents worked or went out during the night.

The father claimed that his wife was a messy housekeeper and failed to wash dishes, wash the child and cook supper. Mrs. Barbara Custred, the paternal grandmother, said the baby was "filthy" when brought to her home last Wednesday morning.

In entering the temporary order, pending additional testimony, Judge Williams suggested that an investigation of the situation be made by the Monroe County Children's Bureau.

Executive director choice to be supported

Planners to submit 'position paper'

STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County Planners will issue a "position paper" in support of their recommendation to appoint Douglas Williams of Stroud Township an executive director of the Monroe County Planning and Zoning Commission.

Obituaries

Ray Jones, Mount Bethel, dies at 52

MOUNT BETHEL — Raymond Jones, 52, of Mount Bethel R. D., died Wednesday in his home.

Born in Mannington, W. Va., he was a son of Mrs. Caroline Toothman Jones and the late Samuel Jones. He had lived in Upper Mount Bethel Township for 19 years.

Mr. Jones was employed as a cabinet maker by Edinger-Wyckoff, Inc., Stroudsburg. He was an Army veteran of World War II, a member of the Knowlton American Legion Post 314, Columbia, N. J.; Bangor Lodge No. 1106 BPOE, and the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, local 501, Stroudsburg.

He was of the Nazarene faith. Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Helen Wade Jones; one son, Ray of Columbia, N. J.; a grandchild; five sisters, Mrs. Milton Kimmel, San Francisco, Calif.; Mrs. Hubert Welles, Mrs. Irene Reynolds, and Miss Rose Ann Jones, all of Mannington, W. Va.; and Mrs. Francis Spolt, Fairmont, W. Va.

Private services will be held Sunday in the Reed Funeral Home, Johnsonville, Pa., with the Rev. Charles Cummings officiating.

Cremation will follow the service. Friends and relatives may call at the funeral home Saturday after 7 p.m.

In lieu of flowers, contributions can be made to the General Hospital of Monroe County.

S-burg man's services held

EAST STROUDSBURG — Funeral services for Clarence Bond St., 80, of 430 Oakwood Ave., Stroudsburg, were held Wednesday in Lanterman Funeral Home with the Rev. William F. Wunder officiating.

Burial was in Effort Cemetery, Effort. Pallbearers were Blaine Hahn, Larry Heller, Bruce Price, Sidney Reckner, Allan Bond, and Ronald Bond.

Decision to issue the "position paper" was reached during a special executive meeting Monday night. It was the first meeting the planners have held since they recommended the appointment of Williams to the Monroe County Commissioners.

Final decision to hire Williams for the post now rests with the County Commissioners, although according to the County Code, action by Commissioners is not needed.

Marshall Reese, planning commission chairman, said Wednesday planning members are reviewing a draft of the "position paper."

Reese said the paper will probably be released early next week.

The League of Women Voters of the Stroudsburgs and county residents have objected to the appointment of Williams.

Monroe County Commissioner Nancy Shukaitis had previously officially revealed the Planning Commission recommended hiring Williams.

Reese indicated earlier that the Commission's choice was presented to the three County Commissioners since they have to approve the salary.

The Pennsylvania County

Code stipulates that the Planning Commission "...may employ engineers and other persons whose salaries and wages together with other necessary expenses of the commission shall be provided for, in the discretion of the county commissioners, by proper appropriations and resolutions."

Opposition to Williams' appointment has also spread to questioning the number of developers who are members of the Planning Commission.

One of the Monroe County Commissioners said in private discussions he agrees there may be too many developers on the Commission. He indicated that when terms expire for the current planners, the vacancies may be filled with men in other professions.

The County Code states, "All appointees shall be residents of the county, and shall be appointed with due consideration to geographical and population factors."

All appointees shall have knowledge and experience in respect to one or more of the following subjects: finance, commerce, industry, agriculture, transportation, architecture, real estate, building, engineering, social welfare, health, civic administration and law."

Current members of the planning commission, their term expiration date, and professions, are:

Reese, 1972, engineer; Amzi Attomose, 1974, builder-contractor; John Detrick, 1970, businessman, developer; Vance Megargel, 1972, developer, real estate; William McFadden, 1970, college professor; John Mills, 1970, educator; David E. Nelson, 1974, school business manager; E.H. Staples, 1974, contractor; Frank Young, 1974, builder, developer, 1972.

Attomose, Nelson and Staples were appointed by the present County Commissioners last year.

SPOIL YOUR FAMILY WITH FLAMELESS ELECTRIC HEAT

For that wonderful warm luxurious feeling, nothing equals a radiant ceiling.

If you're modernizing a room or two, or the entire house, ceiling cable is perfect for bringing your heating system up to date at very low cost.

Insulated cable is concealed in your ceilings. Heat is radiated downward to warm you like the sun warms a sun-bather. The system warms a room instantly and permits economical individual temperature control in each room.

An important advantage of radiant ceiling heat is that it is completely concealed and takes up no space whatsoever. In addition, it is particularly practical for rooms or areas where cabinets, fixtures and other obstructions preclude the use of other types of flameless electric equipment.

And everything's so clean! Draperies, window sills, furniture. You see cleanliness wherever you look.

Make a clean break with the past. Live better electric. 3½" Radiant ceiling heat is a great step to a Total Electric Gold Medal Home. Call Met Ed.

MH/MR to open Carbon office

STROUDSBURG — The Tri-County Mental Health and Mental Retardation Board gave the word "go" to its administrator, Thomas E. Foley, Wednesday night to proceed in procuring applicants for a counselor, secretary and location for an Information and Referral Office in Carbon County.

The move implemented the planning grant program which the State department of Public Welfare approved last week.

The total grant was approved for $48,844 which will carry the program to June 30, 1969. The state will share 90 per cent and the three counties the balance in proportionate shares of 50 per cent for Carbon, 40 per cent for Monroe and 10 per cent for Pike county.

Foley and James Walker, Carbon County commissioner, representative on the board, will work out an agreement for a proposed office site in Jim Thorpe and present it for approval to Carbon County commissioners.

Foley explained that the hiring of an information and referral counselor for the Carbon County office will be somewhat difficult since the state designates that it will be a civil service position.

Foley said there is no such position on the current civil service list but after checking with the state as to the procedure in applying he was told to find the person first, fill out and forward the proper Civil Service papers.

The state will determine the proper job classification and salary after qualifications are evaluated.

State regulations say that all personnel other than the administrator will be Civil Service positions.

The board authorized Foley to go ahead and get applicants, present the qualifications to the board and upon approval, fill out necessary Civil Service forms. Upon return of classification and salary, the board will submit it to Commissioners for final approval.

Foley said he could not determine what the Civil Service salary would be but said that he had a budget of $10,000 for the position in the grant.

Approval was made for a second information and referral counselor for the Monroe-Pike area but cannot be implemented until the last quarter of April 1, 1969, on the stipulation that the Mental Health Center of the General Hospital of Monroe County would be able to support this service.

Foley reminded the Board that the State, in its approval, said the grant was strictly for the purpose of program planning only and not to support services, treatment or care. The I&R Counselor will only serve in planning capacity until June 30, 1969, unless the State amends this action.

A bid of $1,600 submitted by Steinhauer's Stationary of Stroudsburg for furnishings for the I&R office was recommended for acceptance by the board to be submitted for final approval by the three Boards of County Commissioners. The bid is according to budgeted allocations. No other bids were submitted.

Foley said he has been consulting the staff of the Mental Health Center to see how the services are being provided and how the Tri-County program can supplement the services and make them available through his program.

Foley said he also has notified other hospitals in the area of the services available at the Center, outlining procedures of referral. A reply came from the Gaden Huellen Hospital in Lehighton that they will plan to provide psychiatric beds at their facility. Psychiatric consultation would be provided by the Center.

Foley said "our program, once operational, can arrange to implement this type of expanded service" if a hospital cannot provide funds to carry it.

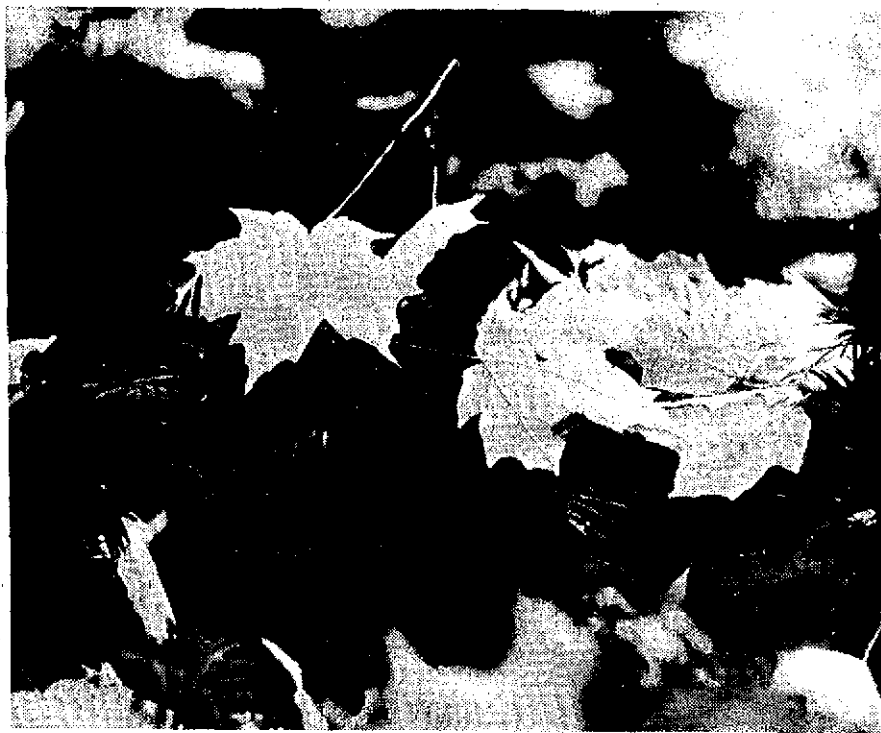

Vernon A. Bartleb, Special Education representative from the Carbon County schools, announced that bids will be opened on Nov. 6 for the county's proposed workshop for the handicapped. The building will cost approximately $80,000 and will adjoin the vocational technical school in Jim Thorpe.

In his opinion, Judge Williams noted that Klinger is not being confined because of the criminal process against him as alleged in the defendants' petition, but through provisions of the Mental Health Act of 1951.

It was further noted that two court appointed physicians found Klinger mentally ill and ordered his commitment to Farview before he came to trial.

The opinion issued by Judge Williams concluded with a recommended course of action for Klinger to take if he wished to pursue the issue.

County court busy place; juries hearing three trials

STROUDSBURG — Three separate jury trials are being held in Monroe County Court.

President Judge Arlington W. Williams is presiding in two of the trials, while retired President Judge Fred W. Davis is specially presiding in the other.

Scheduled for completion today is a trial involving Ronald C. Cortright, East Stroudsburg, R. D. 2, who is charged with loitering and prowling on the grounds of the Mountain Manor, Marshalls Creek. The trial started Tuesday.

Judge Williams is expected to charge the jury hearing this case early this morning.

Testimony will continue this morning in the trial of George H. Stam, West Palm Beach, Fla., who is charged with failure to stop at the scene of an accident. Judge Williams is also presiding in this case.

A jury is also expected to receive the case of Earl T. Kresge, Sciota, who is charged with drunken driving. Judge Davis is presiding in this case.

Wednesday, a Pennsylvania state trooper, Gerald Gaetano, testified that Kresge tried to bribe him with money while waiting in a doctor's office to be tested for drunkenness.

Gaetano said that while sitting in the office of Dr. Frank E. Halstead, 1185 Appenzeller Ave., Stroudsburg, Kresge took several bills from his pocket and offered them to Gaetano saying, "see if you can do something with Kresge."

Dr. Halstead and Max Beaver, a deputy sheriff at the Monroe County Jail, testified that, in their opinions, Kresge was under the influence of alcohol when stopped Aug. 30 by trooper Donald Kresge.

Serving on this jury are George I. Butz, Doris F. Reed and Edward Yost, all of Stroud Twp.; Lillian Zapek, Mount Pocono; Herbert Calvert, Hamilton Twp.; Mae A. Fazio, Stroudsburg; Roy T. Feller, Chestnut Hill Twp.; Elwood Heeter, Price Twp.; Claude A. Heiney, Eldred Twp.; Everlina Jones, Coolbaugh Twp.; and Jane S. Joseph and Sidney M. Newcomb, both of Smithfield Twp.

Serving on the Stam jury are Earl Arnold, John Baymor, Jonas T. May, Garnet L. Rumsey and Florence E. Schilla, all of Stroudsburg; Dixie L. Wilson and Lewis H. Borth, both of Smithfield Twp.; Tilghman A. Berger, Mount Pocono; Elwood F. Doll, Middle Smithfield Twp.; Ralph C. Schaller, East Stroudsburg; Russell P. Scheller, Chestnut Hill Twp.; Howard A. Speck, Pocono Twp.; and Forrest Stout, Hamilton Twp.

Serving on the Cortright jury are Russell P. Balmer and Howard Popkin, both of Stroudsburg; Oscar W. Barry Jr., Dorothy Owens and June Van Why, all of Stroud Twp.; Alvin Cardozo, Coolbaugh Twp.; Frances C. Dorshimer, Chestnut Hill Twp.; Dorothy Goldy, Ethel Peters and Pearl Scully, all of East Stroudsburg; Fred C. Williams, Hamilton Twp.; and Shirley Murray, Mount Pocono.

Council discusses open housing myths

STROUDSBURG — Myths of open housing were discussed at the Wednesday night meeting of the Monroe County Interracial Council held at the Stroudsburg Methodist Church with emphasis on how these myths fit into the local picture.

"Property values drop when a Negro moves into an all-white area" was one such myth. The facts are that, as the realtors at last month's meeting attested, the real value of property is not affected.

Panic selling by whites in a neighborhood may temporarily reduce those values by dumping many properties on the market at once, but even this temporary falling off is soon stabilized.

"I wish the man who told me that my moving into an all-white neighborhood would reduce property values could look at the property values there now," commented one Negro who has lived in his present home for many years.

A related myth is that "Once a Negro moves into an area it always turns black". Here again panic selling may make houses in the neighborhood available to Negro buyers but home owners who remain discover that the section can keep its economic and moral values and also gain some excellent new citizens.

Only five attend planning hearing

STROUDSBURG — Only five persons attended a public hearing Wednesday night to review proposed zoning standards for Stroud Township.

"It doesn't look like our township people are much concerned," said Arthur Henning, planning commission chairman.

Hearing on the zoning standards culminates more than one year's work to provide some regulations for the orderly growth of Monroe County's largest township.

Both supervisors and planning commission members had expected a large crowd of persons to attend the session since the regulations, or the lack of regulations, have created a mild storm throughout the past year.

The supervisors had seating available for more than 200 persons. In attendance, however, were only Stanley Grace, Bill Crooks, Elvin Ace, Vern Marshall and Jay Snyder.

Henning, after briefly reviewing the 28-page zoning standards, told the five persons, "I think it's the intent of the planning commission not to have so many strict regulations. We're trying to keep it simple and as wide open as possible."

"We don't want to restrict building, we want to get all the building we can," Henning added.

D.A. Hansen, solicitor, said purpose of the regulations are only to provide a guide for the township's orderly growth and prevent a hodge-podge of development.

The zoning standards specifically contain regulations for eight districts in regulating the use of land, location of the land and the use and density of the buildings.

The eight districts are low density residential, low medium residential, medium residential, neighborhood commercial, general industrial, open reserve and recreation and conservation.

Supervisors are expected to officially act on the zoning regulations at their next regular meeting which will be held 7:30 p.m. October 30.

Once supervisors adopt the regulations in an ordinance, they will have to appoint a three-member Zoning Board of Adjustment. This Board will hear complaints and grant variances. A zoning officer will also have to be appointed.

Crooks told the supervisors and planning members that the public hearing was legally advertised, but asked, "has it been morally advertised?"

He said the hearing is for the people and "you should encourage the people to come here."

Rose M. Poll, Bushkill, dies

EAST STROUDSBURG — Mrs. Rose M. Poll, 78, of Bushkill, died Wednesday night in the General Hospital of Monroe County.

Born in Jersey City, N. J., she was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Shapiro.

Mrs. Poll is survived by her husband, Phillip, at home.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by the Lanterman Funeral Home.

County jail keeps three

STROUDSBURG — Of five men committed to Monroe County Jail, two were released after payment of fine and costs and the others remain in jail.

In and out were Richard Morevinski, 34, of Plymouth, and John F. Strouse, 47, of 255 Washington St., East Stroudsburg. Both men were charged with public intoxication and each paid $19 in fine and costs.

Also in jail on a public intoxication charge is Aaron F. Kennedy of Scranton.

Paul A. Hulsizer, 64, of Mount Pocono is in jail in default of $600 bail on a charge of operating a motor vehicle without a license.

Joseph Stevens, 18, of 133 E. Brown St., East Stroudsburg, is in jail in default of $1,000 bail on an assault and battery charge filed by his wife, Rose.

School bus route again criticized

STROUDSBURG — Once again, the word "pickup" dominated Stroudsburg School Board's Wednesday night meeting in the junior high school.

Richard Cramer of High Terrace Development, Stroudsburg R.D. 3, asked the board to reconsider his request to have a bus come nearer to his home on High Terrace Drive.

Cramer who has a boy attending kindergarten asked the board if his boy is supposed to walk seven-tenths of a mile to the bus.

Donald Stone, a member of the transportation committee, pointed out that according to law the legal maximum limit for a school child walking from his home to a bus or vice versa is 1.5 miles.

Cramer made his third request to the board for some action on bus transportation.

The first time the board told him it would make the additional run after the road was paved. The road has been paved and at last month's board meeting the board told him it would turn the matter over to the transportation committee for further investigation. The additional mileage the bus would have to travel is seven-tenths of a mile one-way.

Rudger Dunning, elementary supervisor, told Cramer that the bus will come to the foot of the hill and turn around on Rt. 611 as opposed to three-tenths of a mile further as had been previously the case.

Board president Raymond Roberts said that the school district spends about $133,000 a year on bus transportation and that in other areas, including Stroudsburg itself, school children walk up to a mile or more to school or to a bus pick-up station stop.

Cramer noted that there was a difference between school pupils walking through borough street and streets in woodland areas.

Board secretary Dr. John Lim said that bus transportation was the district's "biggest headache". He noted that a bus travelling time is long enough as it stands now, and that each run off a main bus route only increases the time factor for students and driver alike.

In other action, the board:

— Awarded E.M. Rinehart Co. a bus contract for Route Two at $33.50 a day. At last month's meeting Rinehart refused to sign the contract for bus Route Two because he claimed he had misread the contract and submitted too low a bid. The board then announced that it would re-advertise for Route Two.

— Heard from Dr. Lim who said that on Nov. 6 the building committee would meet with architects to discuss plans for a Middle School.

— Discussed transportation needs for supplemental bus contracts and accepted three supplemental bus runs.

— Agreed to Delaware Valley Transportation Co.'s request for parking its buses in an area near the athletic field for $50 a month parking cost.

— Heard from school district superintendent Earl Groner who announced that 24 district secondary teachers and 16 elementary teachers are pursuing graduate studies which would raise the teacher's salaries list $6,400.

— Accepted the resignation of Mrs. Diane Nesbitt, a high school mathematics teacher, effective Dec. 13.

— Heard a report from assistant superintendent Samuel O. Wells III on increased telephone service at Ramsey, Hamilton and Clearview Elementary schools.

Two districts at meeting

STROUDSBURG — Two of the four school districts in Monroe County will be represented at Department of Classroom Teachers meeting today, Friday and Saturday, at Bedford Springs.

Douglas Schoonover will represent East Stroudsburg School district and H. Kenneth Lee Jr. and Robert Wolbert will represent Stroudsburg School District.

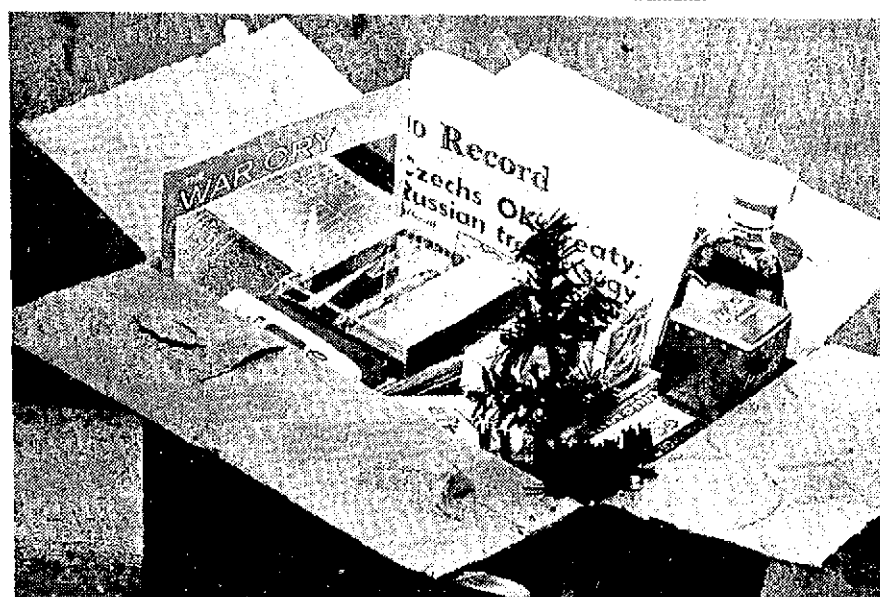

Russia seen big loser

STROUDSBURG — Robert E. Lamb, U. S. State Department official, operations officer, office of personnel, spoke to Stroudsburg Kiwanis Club Wednesday and said that although Czechoslovakia lost a great deal of newly won freedom by Russia's recent troop invasion, the Soviets will ultimately be the big losers.

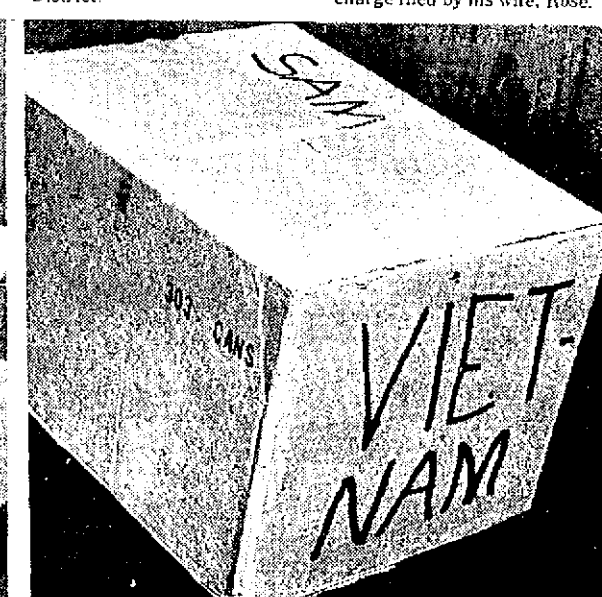

Lamb spoke on the topic, "Who will be the real losers in Czechoslovakia?" Dr. Kurt Wimer, head of the social science department at East Stroudsburg State College, introduced Lamb to the Kiwanians.

Christmas packages for men and women serving in Vietnam

EAST STROUDSBURG — The local Salvation Army Corps with the aid of the local VFW is preparing Christmas gifts to go to persons serving in Vietnam from Monroe County.

Some of the gifts include: Gillette teematic razor, Paper-Mate nylon pen, shaving supplies, miniature Christmas tree, Christmas candies, Kool-aid and reading material.

There will be at least 20 articles in each box.

Captain Rex Worthy, Salvation Army commanding officer, announced that each person serving in Vietnam from Monroe County is eligible. Persons can write or call local Salvation Army Corps or VFW giving name, rank, address and the APO address before Nov. 4.

Calls will be received any time during the hours of 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Last year, approximately 91 boxes were mailed to local men and women serving in Vietnam.

It is suggested that friends or relatives contact the Salvation Army or VFW in the very near future to insure early mailing.

Captain Worthy stressed that there is no solicitation of funds for this program. He felt it was a way for the community to express its appreciation to the men and women who have a very difficult job to perform.

JIM MURRAY Happiness is 10,000 meters

MEXICO CITY — Naftali Temu, whatever that is, won the Olympic 10,000 meter race by a nose the other day. Around the racetrack they would have held up the purse. Because, actually, the margin of victory was 7,347-feet — or whatever the distance is from the sea to the slopes of Mt. Kenya and the African ranges where Naftali practiced.

The conditions of the race couldn't have suited the winner more if they let him ride. The only thing that could have made him feel more at home would be the presence of a few goats and lions sprinkled around the course. The fifth, sixth and seventh place finishers not only lost the race in the 23rd lap, they lost consciousness. There are people in the morgue who look better than Ron Clarke did when he crossed the finish line. And have a stronger heart beat, too.

The race was heavily attended by heart transplanters. I have to think. But, at the finish, seven out of 10 would have been rejected.

There's another distance race Friday — the 400 meters. The doctors said the athletes wouldn't be affected 'til the distances reached a mile, but they were toppling over on the starting block Sunday. Our 800-meter runner, Wade Bell, was so white, you could see through him.

A cardiologist's delight
The 10,000 meters is usually a "turn-blue" race anyway. Sunday, it was a cardiologist's delight. Nearly an undertaker's. A guy with a weak pump shouldn't even be allowed to clock it at this altitude.

If you took a string from the African home of the win and place runners and stretched it westward (or eastward) to Mexico City, it would run right through City Hall basement. The wind was allowable, but there was some question whether the altitude should have been.

The race started off as if it would wind up in the critical ward of County Hospital — as if first prize should not be a gold medal but a new heart. They got around the track only twice before one guy hit the stretcher. In this country, the poor guy couldn't even be a mailman.

Nearly one-fifth of the field was under oxygen before the race was half run. Ron Clarke will never believe he ran the last five laps. It proves there is life after death.

They finished the race just under half-an-hour. At sea level, this field could walk faster than that. It's like a guy winning the U. S. Open with an 89, or a guy pitching a 20-hit shutout.

At that pace, it was just a stroll in the park for the winners. If they hadn't been in the field, this race would be just coming up for the three-quarter mark. They were so fresh, I think they tied the world record for the last 200 meters.

Three of the first four finishers come from condoor country. They probably spent the first 20 years of their lives trying not to run into eagles. They need just a little more oxygen than a shark.

It was an all-African medal finish. Mohamed Gammoudi, the bronze medalist, is from Tunisia. He was the only one on the victory stand who didn't get his first look at the sea from the window of an airplane.

Gammoudi was not having any nonsense about gracious losing. "At sea level, I beat them," he said simply. He also looked like a gaffed fish at the finish.

Juan Maximo Martinez, an orphan who was raised in country where he had to go downhill to get to Mexico City, might have won his country's first-ever medal if he could have fought as fast as he could run. He saved his kick for the middle of the race.

For the Kenyans and the Ethiopians, this race was just a sprint. They run that far just to answer the telephone. The Ethiopian, Mamo Wolde, barely beaten, just used this race as a tuneup for the marathon — which is like swimming Lake Superior to ready yourself for the Atlantic Ocean. The marathon is 20 miles longer. Actually, he and Temu probably could have sat out the first 15 minutes of the race and still have caught that field when it ran out of oxygen. They, on the other hand, could have blown up balloons immediately after finishing.

For the rest, the race might just as well have been run at 20 fathoms in the Indian Ocean. The environment couldn't have been more hostile if they raced in a shower of spears. Actually their lungs must have felt like it.

The Americans, Germans, French and Russians trained at altitudes for periods ranging from a month to six weeks. But their circulatory, capillary or corporeal systems were not fooled. You don't run a race like this with your feet, you run it with your lungs. Toulouse-Lautrec could win with a sufficient vital capacity and a childhood spent in Tibet.

Actually, the most extraordinary showing of the day was by the Britisher, Ronald Hill. The highest he could train above sea level was the Tower of London. And he ran barefoot. He was the only guy who finished the race with blisters on both his lungs and his feet. And he was seventh, only 26 seconds behind the winner. If he could have rented an office in the Empire State Building, he might have broken the world's record. As it was, the best his trainers could do was take him up for an airplane ride once a week and let him walk the wings.

Dukett, Csencsits lead conference

STROUDSBURG — East Stroudsburg and West Chester continue to dominate individual statistics in the Pennsylvania State Colleges Athletic Conference halfway through the grid season.

For the fifth consecutive week, East Stroudsburg's Billy Dukett, Phillipsburg, leads the 13-team conference in passing and total offense. The tall quarterback is a sure bet to pass the 1,000-yard mark in both categories this Saturday at Mansfield.

Against Mansfield, Dukett will be going against the No. 2 man in both departments, Stu Casterline.

Mansfield could tie the Warriors for first place in the Eastern Division with a victory. "Stroud isn't invincible," said Mansfield coach Rod Kelchner, "and our kids are starting to jell. Anything can happen on a football field and I think we have a chance."

In the Western Division, the big battle will find California and Shippensburg in a clash to determine the division leader. Both teams are 2-0 along with Clarion, which has a non-league game with powerful Indiana (4-0).

Bert Nye, the West Chester fullback who rushed for his 2,025th career yard in the 41-7 win over Bloomsburg last Saturday, continues to hold a wide lead in rushing while his teammate, Bill (Rocky) Rees moved into second place. The two Rams backs are tied for the lead in scoring with 36 points each, while Nye is runnerup in punting with a 37.6 average.

Ed Csencsits of East Stroudsburg grabbed off six passes in the 63-0 rout of winless Cheyney and continues to lead the league with 26, although West Chester's Don Wilkinson, who caught ten against Bloomsburg, and Mansfield's Mike Diveris, each with 20, are closing in.

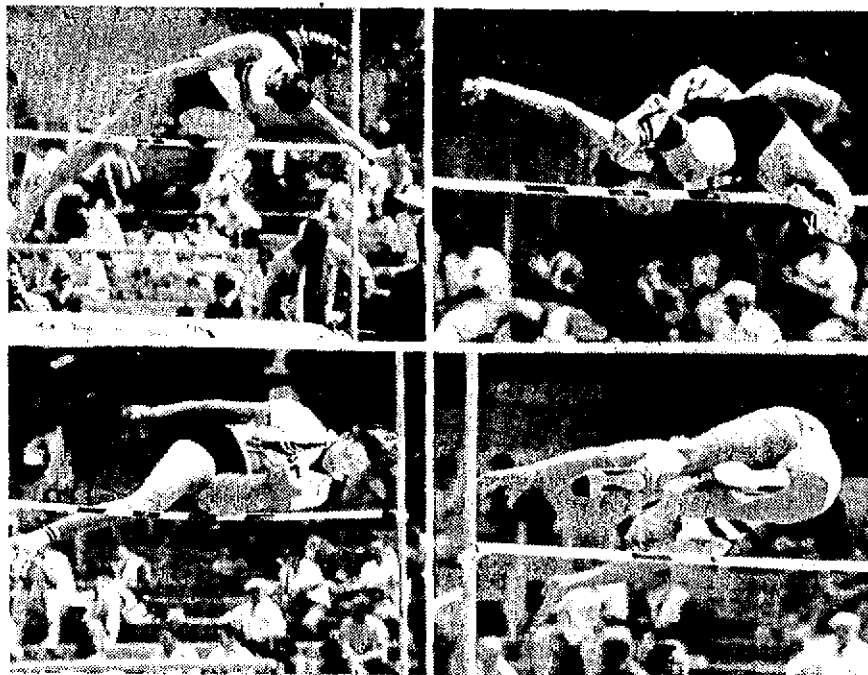

The Warriors' Dan Staats kicked his second field goal of the season against Cheyney, a 33-yarder, longest in the conference this year.

Tannersville terrier show

TANNERSVILLE — The Blue Ridge Mountain Fox Terrier Association will hold their first fall show on Sunday, October 20, at the Pocono Township Volunteer Fire Co. Memorial Building.

The competition will begin at 1 p.m. and entries are to be made from 10 a.m. to 12 noon.

Those interested in obtaining more information are asked to contact Marion S. O'Donnell, secretary-treasurer of the association at Box 113, Route 3, Moscow, Pa.

Everybody might agree that the female is the graceful member of the species. But this four-girl glimpse at Olympic high jump qualifications for women at Mexico City Wednesday seems to indicate that the gals are more interested in place (in the finals) than grace. (UPI Telephoto)

Southwest due for shuffle; Pitt should continue streak

MEXICO CITY (UPI)—The high altitude here affects all the athletes differently.

Most of them say you can have it but there are some who like it. Others say the height makes no difference at all.

Then you take the Arkansas Razorbacks' football team. They're not here but they like the altitude anyway. The Hogs are way up there in the Southwest Conference with a 4-0 laundry mark and they like it fine except when some wil suggests that maybe they're living a little high on the Hog.

The oddsmakers figure they'll tumble in their up-tight conference confrontation with Texas at Austin Saturday. I don't think the Hogs' soph quarter-back Bill Montgomery will get them home all right.

Two of my other preferences are Tennessee over Alabama (the Vols are in love with their new home track) which is pretty much the same material those Olympic records are being set on here, and Indiana over Michigan because the Hoosiers figure they have something to prove.

And then they wrote:
The East
Navy over Pittsburgh—You should've heard what the Pitt coach told his players after the Syracuse 50-17 shambles. It won't do any good.

Rutgers over Army—See what happens when you're not looking.
Princeton over Colgate—Red Raiders are gunning for the Tigers, though.

And Harvard over Cornell, Holy Cross over Boston U., Villanova over Buffalo, Dartmouth over Brown, Yale over Columbia, Connecticut over Maine, Massachusetts over Rhode Island, New Hampshire over Vermont, Penn over Lehigh, Temple over Hofstra and Delaware over West Chester.

The Midwest
Ohio State over Northwestern
The Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals should hear about this.

Notre Dame over Illinois—It'll be a terrible embarrassment if it winds up the other way around.

Nebraska over Missouri—Cornhuskers play rough.
Purdue over Wake Forest—Leroy Keyes gets back on the track.
And Kansas over Oklahoma

State, Minnesota over Michigan State, Oklahoma over Iowa State, Iowa over Wisconsin, Colorado over Kansas State, Louisville over Marshall, Ohio U. over Miami (O.), Cincinnati over Wichita State, Bowling Green over Kent State, Toledo over Western Michigan and Southern Illinois over Dayton.

The Southwest
Rice over SMU—Owls should be the ones to bottle up hot-shot Chuck Hixson.

Texas A and M over TCU—Two have-nots scuffling in the grass.

Arizona over Brigham Young—Paying back the Cougars for last year.
And University of Texas at El Paso over New Mexico State, North Texas State over Tulsa, San Jose State over New Mexico and Texas A and I over McNamara.

The South
Florida over North Carolina—Someone's gonna get the Gators this year but it doesn't figure to be the Tar Heels.
Clemson over Duke—Everybody's bowling over the Blue Devils.

Georgia over Vanderbilt—Vince Dooley has his Bulldogs up for this one.

And Auburn over Georgia Tech, Florida State over Memphis State, Kentucky over LSU, Boston College over Tulane, Miami over Virginia Tech, Mississippi over Southern Mississippi, Texas Tech over Mississippi State, Virginia over North Carolina State, West Virginia over William and Mary, VMI over the Citadel, Richmond over Furman and Chattanooga over East Tennessee.

The Far West
Southern California over Washington—O. J. Simpson was "held" to 220 yards by Stanford.
Oregon State over Arizona State—both should put a lotta points on the scoreboard.
Stanford over Washington State—Cougars in for a bad time.

UCLA over California—Tommy Prothro says he's not sure Bill Bolden is ready but Bolden hit a dozen out of 19 in practice the other day. He's ready.
And Air Force over Colorado State, Wyoming over Utah, Utah State over Pacific and Oregon over Idaho.

The AFL
San Diego over Denver—Sid Gillman's crew keeps charging.

Schoendienst, four coaches sign new contracts for '69

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Red Schoendienst, managing a team which has dominated the National League for the past two seasons, signed his 1969 contract Wednesday with the St. Louis Cardinals.

Schoendienst, who will be starting his fifth year as Cardinal manager next season, said he was "very happy" with his new contract, estimated at about $55,000.

Also signing contracts with Schoendienst were the team's four coaches, including newcomer George Kissell, who will replace Joe Schultz, named manager of the new Seattle team in the American League. The three coaches remaining with the team are Dick Sisler, Billy Muffett and Bob Milliken.

Schoendienst gave a cautious indication that the Cards should be able to win their third straight pennant. "Some pitching has to be added, both starting and relief pitching," he said.

The manager said that his team was "lucky" in the expansion draft because it lost only one player, pitcher Larry Jaster, from this past season's team.

Schoendienst said, "I was surprised that the new teams went to the minor leaguers right away. I was amazed that nobody went for Phil Cagiano or Ed Spivey."

The Cards traded Bobby Tolan and Wayne Granger for Cincinnati's Vada Pinson after the World Series. The trade and the retirement of Roger Maris leaves a couple of openings on the pennant-winning roster. Schoendienst said he hopes one of the spots will be filled by pitcher Mike Torrez, who performed briefly with the Cards this past season but spent most of the year with the Tulsa farm club.

Limits set on birds, cottontails

STROUDSBURG — Pennsylvania's regular small game season will open on Saturday, October 26, at 9 a.m. EDT.

Game Commission Executive Director Glenn L. Bowers cautions all hunters to observe the opening hour on October 26. Since the entire state operates on Eastern Daylight Savings Time, there should be no confusion on the opening hour.

Species which will become legal targets on October 26 include male ringneck pheasants, cottontail rabbits, wild turkeys and bobwhite quail.

The seasons for all these species, except turkeys, will continue through November 30. Turkey season ends November 23 in the northcentral part of the state and on November 16 in the remainder of the commonwealth.

The daily and season bag limits for small game species: COTTONTAIL RABBITS—The daily limit is four per hunter and 20 for the season.

RINGNECK PHEASANTS — the daily limit is two, with a season limit of eight (males only).

WILD TURKEY—A season limit of one per hunter.

BOBWHITE QUAIL—A limit of four per day and 20 per season.

RUFFED GROUSE—A daily limit of two, with a season limit of ten.

SQUIRRELS—Six per day and 30 per season.

The state Game Commission reports that a winter season for cottontail rabbits, squirrels and grouse will open on December 26 and close on January 11.

Four-way campaign for seat in House of Representatives

Fred B. Rooney

Name of Candidate: Fred B. Rooney
Party: Democratic
Address: 247 Uncas Street, Bethlehem
Age: 42
Candidate for: Congressional Representative
District: 15th
Incumbent: Yes

Education — Business Administration Degree from University of Georgia.

Occupation — Real Estate and Insurance.

What particular training and experience have you had that would qualify you for this office?

Pennsylvania Senate, 1958-1963, former Chairman Senate Highways Committee, State Task Force on Community Colleges; Elected 88th Congress, Special Election July 10, 1963, Re-elected 89th and 90th Congresses. Member, House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, Communications and Power Subcommittee. Former member, Committee on Veterans Affairs.

Rooney's replies

What changes, if any, would you advocate in federal policies to solve the problems of the cities?

Seventy "model cities" were designated to become "living laboratories" in which new ideas, approaches are encouraged to resolve urban problems. From these massive experiments will emerge the workable solutions with broadest application which should serve as the nucleus for federal policies to solve city problems. Broad community involvement is vital.

What changes, if any, would you advocate in U.S. policy toward Southeast Asia?

U.S. strength and determination to preserve peace and freedom represent the only hope for the Free World. Without the deterrent of U.S. international alliances, the spread of Communism by force is a virtual certainty throughout Southeast Asia and Europe.

Witness the crushing of liberalization in Czechoslovakia. Return to isolationism will bring neither peace nor peace of mind to Americans. Our one hope and the world's is for the U.S. to remain strong and firm, always first to seek negotiation of differences, and last to advocate aggression as their solution.

Chester R. Litz

Name of Candidate: Chester R. Litz
Party: Constitutional
Address: 318 N. 16th St., Allentown, Pa. 18102
Candidate for: United States Congress
District: 15th
Incumbent: No

Education — Allentown High School, Class of 1933. Three years at Penn State Extension.

Occupation — Bethlehem Steel Co. — Chief operator, Main Laboratory. Part-time self employed builder-remodeler.

What particular training and experience have you had that would qualify you for this office?

My training is the embedded belief in the American tradition of individual liberty, Constitutional government, private enterprise and the defense of our Country against its enemies, both internal and external.

My experience for this office is none, as I am not an incumbent candidate.

Paul E. Henderson

Name of Candidate: Paul E. Henderson
Party: Republican
Address: 2502 Hamilton Ave., Allentown
Age: 43
Candidate for: Congressional Representative
District: 15th
Incumbent: No

Education — Attended Waynesburg High Sch., Kutztown College, and graduated from the Army Air Cadets as a Bombardier in 1944.

Occupation — Sheriff of Lehigh County.

What particular training and experience have you had that would qualify you for this office?

New leadership in Congress has never been more urgently needed. Fifteen years experience as a law enforcement officer gives me the knowledge, understanding and background to serve all the people. Local government experience is going to be crucial if we are to make Federal programs in our cities succeed.

Henderson's hunches

What changes, if any, would you advocate in federal policies to solve the problems of the cities?

The continuing decay of our urban centers must be arrested. The federal level of government should encourage imaginative state and local programs to aid blighted areas and mobilize the vast resources of private enterprise. We must act before the critical problems of urban decline take over Eastern Pennsylvania.

What changes, if any, would you advocate in U.S. policy toward Southeast Asia?

Our nation needs new directions in foreign policy, not just in Southeast Asia. United States policy has tragically failed, substantially as a result of the Administration's failure to keep faith with our people and the world. We must replace the drift of the past with the establishment of sound priorities and the means to achieve them.

Litz's listings

What changes, if any, would you advocate in federal policies to solve the problems of the cities?

Cities, I feel, should be free of any Federal control. When Urban renewal is necessary, it should be financed with private enterprise funds, not Federal subsidies. City school boards should control their educational system without any Federal dictation. The difficulty placed upon the law enforcement officers must be undone by repeal of all soft-on-crime legislation; the cities must keep their police forces independent and free of any Federal control.

What changes, if any, would you advocate in U.S. policy toward Southeast Asia?

Cut all foreign aid and trade to nations that are supplying North Vietnam. Blockade and mine her waters after warning all nations. Our blood and tax drain must be stopped by untying the hands of our fighting men so that they can win the war with conventional weapons, win it fast, and then return home.

Peter G. Cohen

Name of Candidate: Peter Gray Cohen
Party: "Common Sense"
Address: R.D. 2, Box 183, Stroudsburg, Pa. 18360 (Northern Hamilton Twp., Monroe Co.)
Age: 42
Candidate for: Representative in Congress
District: 15th
Incumbent: No

Education — University of Chicago, New School for Social Research; art schools in Chicago, New York and Mexico.

Occupation — Artist and mural painter doing commissioned work for architects.

What particular training and experience have you had that would qualify you for this office?

Extensive travel in United States and abroad, including 16 months in India. Serious study of national and international affairs. Founding member and chairman, Lehigh Pocono Committee of Concern. Coordinator of Pennsylvania Electoral Conferences I and II, organizing independent delegates to both conventions. Member UWF, UN-USA, ACLU, Coalition of Democratic and Independent Voters of Pennsylvania.

Cohen's calculations

What changes, if any, would you advocate in federal policies to solve the problems of the cities?

Revision of welfare programs to aid people to move off welfare rolls into productive lives.

A program modeled on the G.I. Bill of Rights to assist Americans in poverty to help themselves through education, job training, home and business mortgages.

Extensive housing for urban and "new communities," employing minorities in construction work.

What changes, if any, would you advocate in U.S. policy toward Southeast Asia?

A major diplomatic effort establishing realistic goal in Southeast Asia — creation of a neutral, demilitarized zone including Laos, Cambodia and Vietnam, with major power guarantees.

An end to the bombing of North Vietnam and acceptance of the N.L.F. in negotiations and future elections.

Establishment of an Asian force under the UN to police elections and guard the peace.

State helps recent veterans find employment as civilians

STROUDSBURG — Pennsylvania's Bureau of Employment Security is making a concerted effort to assist veterans find civilian jobs in the state as soon as possible.

John Dougherty, manager of the bureau's Stroudsburg Local Office has announced, "Immediate job placement of recently separated servicemen and women is the aim of an 18 month old special program in Pennsylvania BES offices."

says Dougherty as he revealed that this program is coordinated in each office by the local office veterans employment representative.

Cooperating with the Employment Security Bureau in this "Armed Forces Returnee Program" are the U. S. Defense Department and the Veterans Administration, Dougherty added.

Dougherty says that each week this year some 1,000 new veterans will return to Pennsylvania to join the labor force or to continue their education and that this figure is expected to increase steadily over the next two years. Today Pennsylvania claims nearly two million veterans, representing more than half of its male work force.

According to Dougherty, there are about 10,500 veterans in the Stroudsburg Labor Market Area of which the Stroudsburg local BES office is part.

Dougherty pointed out that while nearly all Pennsylvanians leaving active duty with the Armed Forces participate in the "Armed Forces Returnee Program," emphasis is given to specialized services aimed at the employment of those veterans who return to areas of high unemployment. Many of these districts are target areas of the Employment Security Bureau's recently established Human Resources Development program.

Using a special form which the serviceman completes at his separation center as a guide, Dougherty explains, the Bureau's Veterans Employment Service Office in Harrisburg sends each new veteran two letters. One, from Governor Raymond P. Shafer, expressing the Commonwealth's gratitude to the veteran for his Armed Forces service. The other, from John K. Tabor, Secretary of the Department of Labor and Industry, urging the new veteran to visit his Veterans Employment representative and other staff members at the Stroudsburg office. They will furnish current job information, evaluate his civilian and military training and experience, assess his real and potential abilities and, if possible, refer him to a suitable job.

Training center aids retarded

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — It's just an old candy-tobacco warehouse in a predominantly black ghetto—but it's a symbol of new hope and a better life for thousands of mentally retarded.

The Philadelphia Association for Retarded Children obtained $185,000 to renovate its two-story Work Training Center. Most of it came from federal grants.

It will provide schooling, diagnostic services, job training and placement for 200 persons. And perhaps handle several times that number every year.

"Like the measles, we want this institution to spread," said Marvin Schwartz, chairman of PARC's training committee. It was started three years ago.

"We hope our workshop and what we do here will become an incentive for other places throughout Pennsylvania and the country."

"People used to take a kid and let him watch television for the rest of his life. The retarded were regarded as apes. We want our training center to be a model so that others can see that the retarded can be helped."

The center hopes to do more than $200,000 a year business in packaging such items as party goods, catalogs and drug samples.

"Our trainees are not paid slave wages," said Schwartz. "They are paid on a piece basis, according to their ability to produce."

Wages average from $10 to $90 weekly. And 15 former Center trainees now are earning more than $100 every week as mail handlers in the post office.

—AP—
Butt, butt, who's got the political button? The button salesman, are salesmen, naturally. Not counting the millions that are given away free by the candidates themselves, many thousands more—the big ones, the fancy ones—are sold by guys who work the presidential trail every four years.

Jim Connolly, a 45-year-old Philadelphian, says there are "maybe a couple of hundred guys around the country" who are in the business.

Connolly and his partner, Charles McGinty, 42, take a leave of absence from their regular jobs every four years to peddle buttons where the White

Atlantic City plays host to 16 million visitors a year, including vacationers and those who attend the numerous conventions held there.

Danger seen embraced by psychedelics

CARLISLE, Pa. (AP) — Psychedelic artists, those people who make the colorful posters with the wavy designs "demand movement, color, even danger," according to a sociologist at Dickinson College.

Dr. Vytautas Kavolis finds a sociological impact in the works of artists who make their homes in San Francisco's Haight-

Ashbury and New York's East Village.

Their art, he says in his new book "Artistic Expression — A Sociological Analysis," reveals "a sense of weakened mastery over nature expressed in lower middle-class colors."

The book examines all aspects of psychedelia. One of Kavolis's most remarkable conclusions is that persons of Protestant faiths are more inclined to taking LSD, the hallucinatory agent, than Roman Catholics.

This is so, he says, because Catholic ritual provides more emotional return than "the unsmiling austerity of the reformation" available to Protestants.

"It's really very simple,"

Kavolis said, "You start with psychological ambiguity, the I-don't-know-who-I-am feeling and end with a need for intense experience. You have the experience and overcome your ambiguity — at least for the time being. Hence LSD. Hence psychedelic art. And hence also some acts of more general social usefulness."

The people who make and appreciate psychedelic art have "ambiguous identities," the book states. In life, as in art, they seek emotional intensity.

"They drive fast," Kavolis writes. "They find themselves in radical political movements. Like (Albert) Camus's stranger (a character in a novel), who never felt alive until he was about to be executed, they demand movement, color, even danger, simply to have a sense of being alive, of being themselves."

Fireside seat or "settle" designed in a simple country style, popular in colonial days.

Exchange board to meet today

BETHLEHEM — The Lehigh Valley Social Service Exchange holds the sixth in a series of agency board member orientation sessions today.

At the last meeting recently, Mrs. Harold S. Pond of Stroudsburg and a member of the board, characterized Monroe County and the five other counties covered by the Exchange as "a natural area in which people move back and forth readily."

Mrs. Pond spoke to a group of Monroe County board members who visited the Exchange headquarters in Bethlehem to learn how it is used as a central clearing house for health and welfare cases.

She pointed out that people not only move from one county to another as they change place of residence, but sometimes they must go to another community for service when a specialized health or welfare need is involved.

Mrs. William P. Wells, who is also a Monroe County member of the Exchange board, described some situations in which people needing help cannot give information about themselves. She spoke of the instances of young children left alone either by death or desertion of parents, senile aged people living alone, persons very seriously ill or injured, as well as some of the seriously handicapped, and also some of the mentally ill and mentally retarded.

How agencies can use the Social Service Exchange to pool their information and coordinate their services to these individuals and others requiring help was explained by Miss Ella Siegfried, Executive Director of the Exchange.

Shriners slate concert by Duke

WILKES-BARRE — Duke Ellington and his orchestra will present a concert in Irem Temple, North Franklin St., Wilkes-Barre, on Tuesday, Oct. 29, at 8 p.m.

Irem Potentate Frear H. Scovell said the concert is being sponsored by the Shriners of Irem Temple for the benefit of the Shriners' Crippled Children's Hospital in Philadelphia and the Shriners' Hospital for Burned Children, scheduled to open Nov. 2 in Boston, Mass. All of the net proceeds will be divided equally between these two units.

"Country Furniture" was put together to last many lifetimes and into each piece is a little bit of the craftsmen who painstakingly made and designed it. There are two kinds of country furniture — that made by craftsmen and that made by the journeyman carpenter who traveled from village to village using whatever tools were available to him. The difference between the two types is that one produced "country pieces" and the other "common pieces."

One of the first and most important pieces of furniture made was the chest. It was not only used for storage but also as a table, seat and bed. The "Hadley Chest" of this period with its distinctive carvings of tulips, vines and leaves was found around Hadley, Mass., from 1690 to 1710.

The chairs of this period were copies of ancient types of Gothic, heavily built and high-backed. Two chairs of this type were the Carver and Brewster chairs which the Pilgrims identify with. The most popular was the Windsor chair which was developed about 1725. The back is formed entirely of spindles socketed into a top rail. By 1760 it was fitted with rockers to become the Windsor rocker.

Most homes were equipped with seats alongside the fireplaces. These fireside seats or "settles" as they were often called provided a warm corner free from drafts on neck and feet. The backs of these settles were high and extended to the floor, some were provided with a shelf to hold a lamp. Often the seat was a storage chest and some were converted into beds by tilting the back down.

The bidding:

South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass

Opening lead—king of clubs. Let's assume you're West defending against four spades. The play seems routine, as far as you're concerned; you naturally cash the A-K-Q of clubs, everyone following suit, and shift to a low diamond. South wins with the ace, ruffs a diamond, returns to his hand with a trump, ruffs another diamond, draws your trumps and easily makes the rest of the tricks. Making four seems automatic and you probably go on to the next deal without giving the matter further thought, yet, if you study the hand fully, you find you could have beaten the contract.

It is the kind of hand nobody pays any attention to, but it is instructive nevertheless. Instead of leading a diamond at trick four—there is almost no chance on the bidding of finding your partner with the ace—you should lead a trump. Now South must go down. He wins with the ace, cashes the ace of diamonds, ruffs a diamond, re-enters his hand with a trump, and ruffs another diamond.

By this time dummy is out of trumps and has only hearts left. When declarer tries to reach his hand with a heart to draw your trumps, you ruff and the contract is down one.

There is nothing declarer can do to make the hand after you lead a trump at trick four. He may complain about bad luck in finding the hearts divided 5-0, but you can always answer that if he wants sympathy he will find it in the dictionary.

It may seem odd that in order to give yourself the best chance of getting a heart ruff you must lead a trump at trick four, but this type of play is what makes bridge such an interesting game.

Voice of Broadway

It's only October but already it's snowing on 5th Ave.—in the windows of Bonwit-Teller...Liz & Dickie are shopping for a chateau outside Paris...Former Green Bay Packers coach Gene Rozant is recovering from open heart surgery at Mayo's...The cops finally chased the prosties off Broadway and midtown streets—when Hubert Humphrey spoke at the Americana Hotel here; there was a cop-a-foot...Joe E. Lewis is a regular at Sid Allen's spot because Sid sends for Joe in his Rolls-Royce—which has a fully stocked bar, television set, radio, hi-fi, telephone and hot and cold running blondes...Joe may even like the food at Sid's Jersey eatery for all we know.

In Esquire, French playwright Jean Genet, now the darling of the liberal-literary establishment, gave his impressions of the Chicago convention—including his suspicion that the U.S. "smells" of decomposition; if so, Genet must have just acquired the sense of smell.

Milton Berle's a nightly ringsider at the Ali Baba East where Bertha A. Hallow holds forth: she's the "Viennese Tiny Tim," her fans claim...The Moscow Art Theatre is laying Russian eggs in Japan where the reason isn't precisely ascribed to Japanese resistance to Comies or to the $13.98 ticket price.

Comic Marty Barris (former Baltimore symphony trumpeter) has aimed well and will star at the Copacabana — but his major ambition remains a guest shot on Joey Bishop's television show...Joey? Bishop will interrupt his network slavery not for a vacation but for a Vietnam trip...Amazing how many upper salaried showbiz names have been asked to go, have taken a look at their wallets and safe lives and refused.

Francine Gottfried, the cantilevered veranda who parades down Wall Street raising a crop of eyebrows, has been offered a star spot with the E. James Strates Circus.

Mayor Lindsay went to "George M" and returned with wife and three children a week later...It's quite a hit, despite its lack of true reflection of George M. Cohan's life and personality; nor does its star Joel Grey look, act, dance or project in any way the warmly admired Cohan.

Gilbert Beaud's called in France, "Monsieur 100,000 Volts"; we'd say that's a blatant underwattage; he's at the Cort Theatre here for another 10 days and if you admire Gallic charm and talent go-Go-Go!

If Tony Curtis fans get discouraged with "The Boston Strangler" because Tony doesn't seem to be in it, don't walk out early—he doesn't appear until a full hour into the movie...King Hussein is busy trying to make an under-the-carpet peace with Israel...To head off a Red coup.

Fan of Helen O'Connell's got so carried away with her performance he gave her a solo standing ovation and really got "carried away"—fell over his chair onto his back and was ambulated off to the hospital for X-rays...Plaza Suite is such a hit across the street from Didi's Continental restaurant that owner Dan Yulien has made enough money to open a "Didi's East" on 2nd Ave.

Put Joe DiMaggio down in your Good Book: Joe's off to Vietnam, too...Beatrice Arthur is a talented actress who plainly was unsuitably unimpressed by the fact she is getting her very first Bdwy. starring role in "A Mother's Kisses"; asked why, Bea shrugged, "I haven't been ambitious since I was 15"...Little Nellie Kelly is a George M. Cohan musical recreated in capsule in "George M!" and Elizabeth Hines, star of the earlier show in 1922 was located and invited to "George M" this week.

Thelma Carpenter, at the Apartment, works as a file clerk when not singing: Thelma spent more for her gowns and arrangements than she earned in an office year...Big new West Coast rich-folk fear: kidnappings...Pella got ticketed jay-walking south to north on 42nd St. summons in hand, he crossed Madison Ave. against the light—and of course the same cop ticketed him again...With all the uproar over today's hot Supreme Court issues, our Oldtime reminiscence that in 1893 the Nine Old Men had nothing more important to decide than that the tomato is a vegetable and not a fruit...Those were the days.

Parents' meeting

Charles Arnold speaks to parents on modern math at the first Stroudsburg Junior High School Parents' Group meeting. Over 100 parents attended the gathering which included speeches by Mahlon Serfass, Jerry Stulgaitis, and Vernon Hontz, principal. Two more definite meetings are set for the first Mondays in November and December.

Guerrillas busy in Guatemala

GUATEMALA (AP) — Last month 11 days after U.S. Ambassador John G. Mein was killed by terrorists, police cautiously approached a modest home and knocked.

There was no immediate answer. The police had come upon this particular house while minutely combing a neighborhood where they had sustained a brief but fierce gun battle with an armed band.

Once more they knocked. This time a woman's impatient voice cried out from inside, "Ya voy, Ya voy!" "I'm coming, I'm coming."

Fuss rages over attire in classroom

NEW YORK (AP) — The annual fracas between school officials and students over classroom attire raged across the land today, spiced by glimpses of stockings, tops, panties and even navel.

There was hot and generally unresolved controversy over a number of burning questions:

At what point do a girl's culottes become so brief that they are, so to speak, more like sans-culottes?

Where is the torrid zone on miniskirts?

Should a girl wear a Nehru jacket with nothing underneath but panties?

What is a reasonable length for male sideburns?

School principals from coast to coast were bugged by love beads, and rode off in several directions. Some insisted that the wearing of love beads by males would not do. Others held that love beads, if worn, must be tucked inside shirts. Others said go ahead wear 'em any old way.

Culottes, a sort of split skirt, were taboo last year in Chicago's Morgan Park High School. This term they are permissible if they extend to within two inches of the knee.

At Hollywood, Calif., High, culottes must be full enough to look like unsplit skirts, and three inches up is the limit.

On T-shirts, the official rule at Mandan, N.D., High School is: "They're underwear and not proper school apparel."

But at Radford High School, near Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, T-shirts receive the stamp of approval as long as they do not bear words or pictures.

Officially fixed miniskirt lengths range from two inches above the knee in Jefferson Parish, La., to four inches in Glendale, Calif. But there are other less specific views.

The Westport, Conn., school board ruled simply that skirts must cover the girls' "undergarments and their torsos."

Principal J. H. Boucree of Booker T. Washington High in New Orleans said: "When a girl sits you should not see the tops of her stockings."

An instant later there was a pistol shot. Forcing the door, the police found the crumpled body of a young woman, the top of her head a mass of blood. They said she had fired a .45-caliber bullet into her mouth.

They speculated that Michelle Jeannette Firk, 33, a French citizen who had lived obscurely in the Guatemalan capital for 15 months, feared she might betray important information endangering the security of the Castro-Marxist apparatus. She had devoted her talents to it as an expert forger of passports, identification cards and other documents, authorities said.

She left behind enough evidence for investigators to mark her as an important link between Guatemala's far leftist guerrillas and the Castro-Marxist conspiracy. Investigation revealed one of the cars used in the ambassador's murder had been rented in her name.

Her death and the ambassador's assassination also established that the guerrilla movement was alive and busy.

This appeared to coincide with persistent reports circulating in Colombia and Peru that the Castroite left was preparing a new winter offensive, urban and rural, there and in Guatemala.

The objective of the far left in Guatemala has been the overthrow of the government of Julio Cesar Mendez Montenegro, either through a popular uprising or by forcing the military into a rightist coup.

Lack of popular support, in the hills or the cities, and an intensive military operation smashed Castroite rural efforts late last year and forced them into a bloody urban guerrilla war.

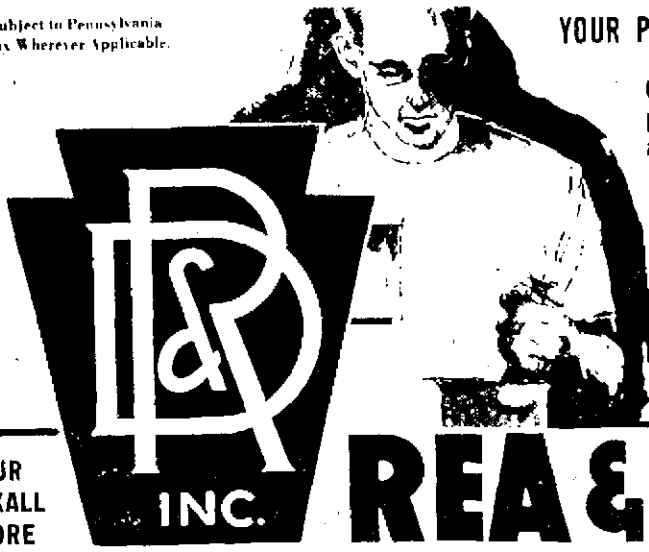

Two members of the U.S. military mission in Guatemala, Col. John D. Weber, military attaché, and Lt. Cmdr. Ernest A. Munro, naval attaché, were slain by guerrillas Jan. 16 at the height of the urban conflict.

These killings stirred speculation about the possible involvement of the U.S. military in the campaign against guerrillas. There were various rumors—that Green Berets of the U.S. Special Forces were in the Guatemalan trouble zone in large numbers, that American planes from Panama were bombing Guatemalan territory.

In the Panama Canal Zone, Gen. Robert W. Porter, commander in chief of the U.S. Southern Command, termed the bombing report "completely false."

U.S. military aid to Guatemala has been running roughly at $1.5 million a year in materiel and technical training, an embassy spokesman says. A 31-man military assistance group is maintained in the country, the spokesman added, to advise and train the Guatemalan armed forces in the administration of the military aid program, which began in 1957.
